Wins Battle Over McCormack

Ted Kennedy's Endorsed As U.S. Senate Candidate

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP)—Those ambitious, never-give-up Kennedys have done it again.

Edward M. (Ted) Kennedy, eager 30-year-old brother of the President and of the attorney general, was endorsed by weary, hoarse Massachusetts Democrats Friday night as a candidate for the U.S. Senate.

In the big battle of famous political names, Kennedy piled up such a margin over Edward J. McCormack, 38, that McCormack gave up before the balloting was two-thirds completed.

With the score card showing Kennedy 691 to McCormack's 360, the voting was stopped.

McCormack came to the microphones, listened gratefully to to the cheers of his supporters, and said:

"I want to thank all of those who had the courage to stand up and be counted in my behalf...I will now take my case to the people."

This means that even though McCormack lost here he will fight Kennedy again in the September primaries, a right he has under Massachusetts law.

Scarcely had McCormack left the platform than here came Kennedy, accompanied by his blonde wife, Joan, to get an even more rousing reception.

Kennedy said he was sure the people of Massachusetts will speak just as the convention delegates did.

"As of tonight," Kennedy said, "we're starting the campaign."

McCormack is the nephew of House Speaker John McCormack, and waiting restlessly in the political wings is a young representative of yet a third famous family.

George Lodge, 34, son of the former United Nations ambassador, Henry Cabot Lodge, faces Rep. Laurence Curtis in the Republican convention a week from today.

Even though Friday night's victory didn't prove much—it gives Teddy first place on the ballot, plus a note that the convention endorsed him—the Kennedys go into everything from touch football to conventions aiming to win.

And young Teddy won here with a technique his brother developed in Massachusetts and perfected in New Hampshire, Wisconsin and West Virginia; bright young men in slick automobiles, pretty girls in crisp dresses, and unremitting industry behind scenes to make sure each delegate is reached again and again.

It's worked wonders for John F. Kennedy, and so far it's working for Teddy.

Franco Tightens Dictatorial Rule

MADRID (AP) — Plagued by bombings and crippling strikes, Generalissimo Francisco Franco's regime today suspended for two years the Spanish people's constitutional right to choose where they want to live in Spain.

Under the sweeping edict, the government can control the movement of anyone opposed to Franco and keep agitators out of industrial centers hit by a seven-week siege of strikes that paralyzed mines and key factories.

The strike—illegal in Spain—dropped off sharply late last month after the government promised some workers pay boosts of up to 50 per cent.

Franco's cabinet approved the decree suspending a key clause in Spain's bill of rights a few hours after the second bomb incident in three days rocked the Banco Popular, a big financial institution in the heart of Madrid.

Police blamed the left-wing Popular Liberation Front for the bombings which shattered windows in the bank and caused other damage. They were linked to recent strikes.

The cabinet pointed up the decree with an announcement which said:

"The campaigns which from outside are being made to harm Spain's credit and prestige have found echo and complicity in some persons who, using the Liberties which the (bill of rights) recognizes, have joined such unworthy maneuvers."

Franco has charged that Soviet subversion and "hot-headed, separatist" Catholic priests played a major role in the strikes which idled more than 60,000 workers in the provinces of Asturias, Leon, Bilbao, Barcelona and Madrid itself.

Some priests have supported the North Basque region's demands for independence. Others have openly backed the strikes for higher wages.

Franco said, however, the attitude of some priests did not alter the fundamental harmony between the church and state. Roman Catholicism is the state religion in Spain.

Anti-U.S. Riots Sweep South Korea

American Military Personnel Confined To Seoul Area Base

SEOUL, Korea (AP) — Anti-American demonstrations spread in South Korea today. The U.S. Army ordered American military personnel in he Seoul area restricted to base except for official business.

A U.S. Army spokesman called the confinement order a "temporary measure to reduce the possibility of incidents" in view of the wave of demonstrations demanding the U.S. government sign a status-of-forces agreement giving South Korea court jurisdiction over American servicemen in some instances.

About 300 university students defying stern new warnings from South Korea's ruling military junta marched out of Taegu University today in the third demonstration in a week stemming from the alleged beating of a Korean civilian trespasser by two U.S. Army officers last month.

A solid wall of police halted the students about 100 yards from the main gate of the university in South Korea's third largest city, about 200 miles southeast of Seoul.

Refusing to withdraw, the students squatted in the street and turned their protest into a sit-down strike. There were no reports of violence.

The government announced Friday night that the United States has agreed in principal to resume negotiations toward a status-of-forces pact. But it said Washington had raised issues which South Korea "finds difficult to accept."

It did not elaborate on these points but said the United States has been asked to reconsider them.

Solicitor's Aide, Meter Maids Stay

Democrats Refrain From Balloting In 'Economy' Action

The Republican majority voted against eliminating the posts of Asst. Solicitor Richard J. Clark and four "Meter Maids" Friday night when the five-man Council "economy" committee finally came to a showdown on some of the jobs it has been deciding whether to eliminate.

Councilmen Robert W. Sample Jr., George E. Willshaw and S. James Welch voted in favor of retaining the five. Frank Duffy, chairman, and Floyd Murray, the two Democratic members, did not vote formally on either question, apparently because the three votes that overruled them were cast first.

DUFFY ARGUED strongly in favor of doing away with both the assistant solicitor and the "Meter Maid" posts. Murray also favored eliminating Clark's job as assistant to Solicitor Joseph W. Cooper, although he appeared to favor retaining the "Meter Maids," but cutting the force to two.

No decision was reached on three other posts that have been under discussion since April 13, when the special committee held its first meeting.

There was discussion on the jobs of Sewer Inspector Floyd E. Tice and Harold (Bus) Cartwright, an assistant in the engineer's office, but the talk trailed off and no vote was taken. Some members of the committee agreed to meet today with Treasurer Bert A. Dawson to find if he is willing to assume the actual administration of the city income tax office, allowing elimination of the post of Tax Commissioner D. G. Wilkinson.

THE QUESTION of another job was injected into the discussion last night for the first time. Duffy asked if the city needs a superintendent of the incinerator department, now that the refuse - burning plant at the foot of Washington St. is closed and the city buries both its garbage and trash in a sanitary landfill in St. Clair Township.

The incinerator has no superintendent at present. James A. McKinnon, who headed the department 14 years, died suddenly two weeks ago. A successor has not been named.

"What's the difference whether the trucks dump the garbage in a furnace or take it out and bury it?" Willshaw asked Duffy. "You still have a department to supervise. The duties are the same as as they were before. I think the incinerator is one of the most efficient departments in the city and it operates continually in the black."

Duffy asked Murray what he thinks of the question.

"It's the first I've heard of it," Murray replied. "I haven't had a chance to investigate it."

'Big' Names Again Linked To Estes Case

Alleged List Hunted Naming Some Who Took Texan's Gifts

WASHINGTON (AP)—A House subcommittee is reportedly trying to lay its hands on an alleged list of naming congressmen and an administration official as receiving money order gifts from Billie Sol Estes.

This was reported Friday by the subcommittee's dismissed Republican counsel, Robert E. Manuel. He spoke to reporters outside a hearing room where the subcommittee was taking testimony that two former agriculture department officials had received such money orders.

James T. Ralph, former assistant secretary of agriculture, told the government operations subcommittee that he and his aide, William E. Morris, each received a pair of $100 money orders from Estes, last January—and turned the money over to the Democratic party.

Both Ralph and Morris have been fired because of their connections with the indicted Texas promoter whose boom-to-bust operations under government farm programs have stirred charges he curried and got favored treatment from officials.

Ralph denied accepting gifts from Estes and also denied that he or anyone else in the agriculture department had ever granted favors to Estes.

Meanwhile Republicans blazed away at the dismissal Thursday of Manuel as the minority counsel on the subcommittee which is headed by Rep. L. H. Fountain, D-N.C.

Soviet Seen Embarrassed By Incidents

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials say Russia has been embarrassed by the string of refugee incidents in Berlin and has tried to shift the blame with its not accusing the West of provoking trouble along the wall.

Although the note was the strongest the Soviet Union has issued recently on Berlin, U.S. authorites said they saw no indication the statement foreshadows a Kremlin effort to start the Berlin crisis boiling again.

The dispute over the divided city has cooled off during the past several months while the United States and Russia have explored various ways of reaching a peaceful solution.

So far the talks have produced no agreement. Another meeting between Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin is scheduled June 18.

The Russians threatened Friday to step into the Berlin situation, charging the United States, Britain and France with fostering "intensified intrigues of the revengists and militarists" who the note said are "trying to provoke a serious sharpening of the situation in West Berlin."

The Washington officials, noting Friday's spectacular East German escape by excursion boat, said they think the Communists feel the repeated escapes and attempted escapes are giving them a blackeye.

Health Board Fills Vacancy Of City Nurse

Miss Selma Rose Ladzinske, 207 Thompson Ave., was named as the new public health nurse by the Board of Health at a meeting Friday night at City Hall.

Her duties will begin July 1. Miss Ladzinske will succeed Mrs. Jeannette Carpenter, who is scheduled to retire after 34 years' service. The post pays $326 monthly, plus a $75 car allowance.

Miss Ladzinske and Mrs. Mary Irene Scott, 1702 Etruria St., were the only two to take the Muncipal Civil Service examination held for the post. Mrs. Scott scored the top grade.

Miss Ladzinske has held posts at City Hospital, Weirton General Hospital and the Lutheran Hospital at Cleveland.

A daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Ladzinske, she is a 1954 graduate of East Liverpool High School. She trained at the Lutheran Hospital at Cleveland, graduating in 1957. She now is assistant head nurse on surgery at the hospital.

She has worked in various nursing fields at the hospitals. She also attended Western Reserve University and has done extension work from Geneva College of Beaver Falls.

In other business, a letter regarding complaints of the condition of Columbian Park was read. Copies had been sent Leland Thompson, owner, Solicitor Joseph Cooper and City Council. The board supported Dr. E. G. Kuhlman on his stand.

Council read a letter Monday night in which the board requested that the city abate the nuisance of the pond of stagnant water. Emil R. Liebschner, chairman, presided.

By Studio That Made Her Star

Marilyn Monroe Fired And Sued For $500,000

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Marilyn Monroe is out of work today — fired by the same studio that made her a star.

The sacking, which caught almost no one by surprise, came Friday only hours after Marilyn notified 20h Century-Fox that she was "ready and eager to return to work Monday morning."

But the studio wasn't impressed and called in Lee Remick to take over.

In another development, the studio announced it had begun legal action against Marilyn to recover $500,000 allegedly lost as a result of the star's frequent absences from the set.

Marilyn's absentee record included five performance days in seven weeks of shooting for the movie "Something's Got To Give." The picture now is 32 days behind schedule and more than $2 million in debt because of Marilyn's no-show.

"It's sad," said one front-office executive. "But no studio these days can afford to have Liz Taylor and Marilyn Monroe working at the same time — especially a studio that lost $25 million last year."

Miss Taylor's absences from the set have helped run the cost of "Cleopatra" to $30 million — the all-time high in movie costs.

Man 'Critical' With Injury In Car Crash

Motorcyclist Also Hurt In Another Of Highway Mishaps

One of three district men hurt when their station wagon rammed a parked auto in California Hollow Friday night remains in "critical" condition today at City Hospital, and a Shadyside Ave. motorcyclist is "fair" with injuries received when struck by a hit-run motorist.

Injured in the Route 30 crash which occurred about 7:30 p. m. on the uphill turn a half mile south of Route 170 were:

Spcl. 4C Alvin Bailey, 20, of 133 E. High St., Lisbon, the driver, who is in "good" condition with lacerations of the mouth, arms and hands.

Frank Young, 15, of Sprucevale, step-son of Norman Temple, in "fair" condition with lacerations of the chin and throat.

The Ohio Highway Patrol at Lisbon said Bailey, home on furlough from Ft. Bailey was lying along the roadway when ambulance attendants arrived, while the passengers remained in the vehicle.

Officers, who have not yet questioned Bailey, are continuing the investigation.

Beaver Local Project Bids Are $100,273

Board To Consider Low Offers During Meeting On Monday

Low bids totaling $100,273 for an addition of two classrooms and a gymnasium-auditorium at the Beaver Local Public School were opened Friday afternoon and will be considered by the Board of Education at its meeting Monday night.

The Riley Construction Co. of Alliance, with an offer of $67,647, was the lowest of six general construction bidders on the project originally intended to include four classrooms.

The addition was part of a planned program of additions at the high school, Calcutta School and Rogers schools for which contracts were let in April.

With the Public School addition, the original program cost was some $288,000, or $46,000 over the amount available. District voters had approved a $253,000 bond issue for the program in September.

The board subsequently trimmed the Public School project and re-advertised for bids.

The Brehm Construction Co., which had been low bidder on the original project at the school, with an offer of $110,491, submitted a bid of $77,490 yesterday.

Other general construction bidders included the Potters Construction Co., $73,860; Floyd Cox, $79,417; Bricker & Bricker Co. of Salem, $74,473, and Modany Brothers of Midland, $74,710.

The Riley firm is currently working on a school project at Lisbon. Potters has the contracts for the Calcutta and Rogers addition, while Bricker & Bricker has the high school work.

Sayre Electric was lowest of three bidders for the electrical work with an offer of $8,252. Bowers Electric of Steubenville bid

Degree Given To Carpenter; Glenn's Due

BOULDER, Colo. (AP)—Astronaut Malcolm Scott Carpenter exchanged his space helmet for an orange-tasseled mortarboard Friday and formally graduated from the University of Colorado.

Amid smiles and applause, the 37-year-old hometown hero accepted the aeronautical engineering degree he missed in 1949 by failing to take a final examination in a heat transfer course. School officials decided to make the award after his May 24 space flight.

NEW CONCORD, Ohio (AP)—It has taken John Glenn nearly 20 years but the nation's first orbiting astronaut finally is going to get his bachelor's degree from Muskingum College.

Glenn, of New Concord, dropped out of Muskingum early in World War II after finishing about three years work toward his degree.

In-State Cut Set On C. & P. Phone Rates

The Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. of West Virginia has been ordered to reduce its in-state toll rates by $436,000 a year.

The Public Service Commission at Charleston issued the order Friday over the utility's protest. However, C. & P. officials said a new rate schedule incorporating the reduction will be filed within 15 days, the PSC reported.

The order was based on action by the Federal Communications Commission last April reallocating certain C. & P. costs from the intra-state to the interstate category. The amount involved was about $436,000.

The PSC said the reduction in intrastate rates would not affect the company's total revenue.

At a hearing last May 9, the company contended that the rate reduction should not be ordered as the utility was not earning the profit it was authorized in its last rate case.

The C. & P. exchange at Weirton provides service for lower Hancock County and its rates govern those charged by the Ohio Bell Telephone Co. serving customers in Chester and Newell areas through the East Liverpool exchange.

Bedford fireman Joseph Martukovich, 31, was reported in good condition in Bedford Hospital after he suffered first-degree burns of both arms and smoke inhalation.

Man 'Critical' With Injury In Car Crash

Motorcyclist Also Hurt In Another Of Highway Mishaps

One of three district men hurt when their station wagon rammed a parked auto in California Hollow Friday night remains in "critical" condition today at City Hospital, and a Shadyside Ave. motorcyclist is "fair" with injuries received when struck by a hit-run motorist.

Injured in the Route 30 crash which occurred about 7:30 p. m. on the uphill turn a half mile south of Route 170 were:

Spcl. 4C Alvin Bailey, 20, of 133 E. High St., Lisbon, the driver, who is in "good" condition with lacerations of the mouth, arms and hands.

Earl Temple, 31, of Sprucevale, a passenger, in "critical" condition with cuts of the mouth, arms, possible concussion and possible internal injuries.

Frank Young, 15, of Sprucevale, step-son of Norman Temple, in "fair" condition with lacerations of the chin and throat.

The Ohio Highway Patrol at Lisbon said Bailey, home on furlough from Ft. Huachuca, Ariz., was headed north in a 1961 station wagon about 1.2 miles north of the city limits when the vehicle ran off the highway and smashed into the parked 1952 sedan owned by Richard Moffett of Dresden Ave. Ext., demolishing the station wagon.

Bailey was lying along the roadway when ambulance attendants arrived, while the passengers remained in the vehicle.

Officers, who have not yet questioned Bailey, are continuing the investigation.

Meanwhile, the patrol is pressing its search for a green 1955 Chevrolet sedan which struck a motorcycle driven by Maurice F. Livolsi, 21, of Shadyside on Koun-

Beaver Local Project Bids Are $100,273

Board To Consider Low Offers During Meeting On Monday

Low bids totaling $100,273 for an addition of two classrooms and a gymnasium-auditorium at the Beaver Local Public School were opened Friday afternoon and will be considered by the Board of Education at its meeting Monday night.

The Riley Construction Co. of Alliance, with an offer of $67,647, was the lowest of six general construction bidders on the project originally intended to include four classrooms.

The addition was part of a planned program of additions at the high school, Calcutta School and Rogers schools for which contracts were let in April.

With the Public School addition, the original program cost was some $288,000, or $46,000 over the amount available. District voters had approved a $253,000 bond issue for the program in September.

The board subsequently trimmed the Public School project and re-advertised for bids.

The Brehm Construction Co., which had been low bidder on the original project at the school, with an offer of $110,491, submitted a bid of $77,490 yesterday.

Other general construction bidders included the Potters Construction Co., $73,860; Floyd Cox, $79,417; Bricker & Bricker Co. of Salem, $74,473, and Modany Brothers of Midland, $74,710.

The Riley firm is currently working on a school project at Lisbon. Potters has the contracts for the Calcutta and Rogers addition, while Bricker & Bricker has the high school work.

Sayre Electric was lowest of three bidders for the electrical work with an offer of $8,252. Bowers Electric of Steubenville bid

Degree Given To Carpenter; Glenn's Due

BOULDER, Colo. (AP)—Astronaut Malcolm Scott Carpenter exchanged his space helmet for an orange-tasseled mortarboard Friday and formally graduated from the University of Colorado.

Amid smiles and applause, the 37-year-old hometown hero accepted the aeronautical engineering degree he missed in 1949 by failing to take a final examination in a heat transfer course. School officials decided to make the award after his May 24 space flight.

NEW CONCORD, Ohio (AP)—It has taken John Glenn nearly 20 years but the nation's first orbiting astronaut finally is going to get his bachelor's degree from Muskingum College.

Glenn, of New Concord, dropped out of Muskingum early in World War II after finishing about three years work toward his degree.

In-State Cut Set On C. & P. Phone Rates

The Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. of West Virginia has been ordered to reduce its in-state toll rates by $436,000 a year.

The Public Service Commission at Charleston issued the order Friday over the utility's protest. However, C. & P. officials said a new rate schedule incorporating the reduction will be filed within 15 days, the PSC reported.

The order was based on action by the Federal Communications Commission last April reallocating certain C. & P. costs from the intra-state to the interstate category. The amount involved was about $436,000.

The PSC said the reduction in intrastate rates would not affect the company's total revenue.

At a hearing last May 9, the company contended that the rate reduction should not be ordered as the utility was not earning the profit it was authorized in its last rate case.

The C. & P. exchange at Weirton provides service for lower Hancock County and its rates govern those charged by the Ohio Bell Telephone Co. serving customers in Chester and Newell areas through the East Liverpool exchange.

Bedford fireman Joseph Martukovich, 31, was reported in good condition in Bedford Hospital after he suffered first-degree burns of both arms and smoke inhalation.

East End Man Recalls Medal Of World War I

The show of flags on Memorial Day, Flag Day and July 4th stirs memories in an East End man, who holds the distinction of being the first soldier from East Liverpool to bring home a medal from World War I.

Orville Webber of Hazel Alley said he was awarded the medal by a French general or knocking out a machinegun nest and saving a group of French soldiers under fire.

garbage collection system in the state of Ohio," Welch declared.

That ended the discussion. The incinerator superintendent's post never had been aired before in the series of committee meetings.

Last night's meeting, the third in the series, was marked by the most political bickering and quibbling to date. Several times the discussion strayed far afield.

Several times Duffy asked if the three Republican members had any proposals to cut city expenses. One one occasion, Welch replied:

"You're the one who started this witch hunt; we didn't."

"If the people don't like our ideas, they can change councilmen at the next election," Sample added.

"Frank and I don't have a chance," Murray replied. "We knew when we started this that we were 'dead'. No other committee on Council has five members. This committee should have three, but the vote is always 3-2, a party issue."

—:—

THEN MURRAY declared that it "was a party issue" at Monday night's session when Council split, 5-2, on an ordinance to pay a $3,890 balance to the Tri-State Asphalt Corp. for sealcoating several blacktop streets last fall. Murray and Duffy opposed the ordinance.

"That wasn't a party issue," Welch declared. "It was a bill left to us. The last administration assumed that contract and we had to pay."

"I don't think you are fair when you say we followed party lines," Willshaw replied. "I don't vote that way in Council. If you have a good idea and I'm in favor of it, I'll go along with you."

"It seems odd that when anything comes up that Duffy and I are for you are against it," Murray replied.

"I never vote party lines; I never did," Sample said. "Just because I don't vote that way you want me to doesn't mean I'm voting party lines."

"I vote according to my convictions," Welch told Murray.

"I'm glad you fellows cleared that up," Murray said. "I thought you were voting party lines."

—:—

"YOU DON'T HAVE to worry about that, Buster," Welch replied. "Both Republicans and Democrats elected me. Nobody paid for my campaign and I'm not obligated to anybody."

The meeting opened with a long discussion of the solicitor's office and his assistant, principally a review of the facts argued by both sides in the first two meetings.

Duffy asserted that Cooper does not need an assistant. The three Republicans argued, if the asitant's post is eliminated, it would mean making the solicitor's post full-time and paying him a much higher salary. The assistant serves as the prosecutor in Municipal Court. Cooper is a Democrat. Clark is a Republican.

"If it's a part-time job, why does he need an assistant," Duffy asked.

Willshaw pointed out that the solicitor's post pays $3,400. The entire expenses of the legal department are $8,000 a year, covering preparation of ordinances and resolutions for Council, legal advice for all departments, criminal prosecutions and defending the city in local and higher courts, Willshaw pointed out.

—:—

"IF YOU THINK we need a full-time solicitor, we probably could get one for $18,000 to $20,000 a year," he said.

Shortly afterward, the vote was taken on the assistant's post, ending the discussion.

The discussion on the engineer's assistants was very brief. Duffy referred to Cartwright, but Willshaw said Cartwright is only one of several paid out of the $4,000 appropriated annually for the engineer's assistants.

Welch scored Duffy for not writing letters to department heads, asking them to attend the meeting, as he had indicated he would do at the last session May 11. Duffy replied that both department heads and the general public were issued an invitation through newspaper stories. No department heads attended.

"Letters should have been written to the department heads so we could talk with them personally and get the facts, instead of dealing in hearsay and rumor," Welch said.

DUFFY SAID Cartwright "doesn't turn in any more bills for gasoline and oil for his car (for use on city business) since the auditor called him on it."

"He would have to have a requisition from the mayor or director before he could turn in a bill," Willshaw replied.

Next Duffy raised the question of the sewer inspector's post. But Willshaw pointed out Council received a letter several weeks ago from the Board of Public Utilities, which now administers the sewage system, explaining that it was in the process of enlarging Tice's duties.

Willshaw suggested marking time until the utilities board advises Council of the legislation it proposes to alter the inspector's duties.

"Do you fellows have any ideas on economy or are you just going to sit there and argue that these jobs are good," Murray asked.

"If we didn't have these employes the city would suffer because the jobs wouldn't be done efficiently," Sample replied.

"YOU TALK OF efficiency, but last Monday I counted 12 cars parked illegally on Market St. and not a ticket on one of them," Murray replied. The police and the 'Meter Maids' haven't been doing their job."

That swung the meeting to a long discussion of parking problems and enforcement.

"Did you file a complaint with the police department," Willshaw asked Murray. "We're a legislative body; we don't enforce the laws."

"We have four women walking around town, but if they're not ticketing cars they're not doing their duty," Murray replied. "I think two people could do the job instead of four. Personally I think the police department is doing a wonderful job. I'm not complaining about the police. But I'll bet you can find six or eight cars parked illegally on Market St. tomorrow morning before this comes out in the newspaper. Then there will be a storm of red tickets."

SAMPLE POINTED out many business houses in the heart of the shopping district do not have rear entrances and leniency sometimes is shown them or their customers in parking to unload or load bulky merchandise.

"If we eliminate the 'Meter Maids' we can save $13,150 a year," Duffy said. He said police could check parking violations while performing their regular duties.

"You can like the devil," Willshaw replied. "How much do you think they bring in." Willshaw added that meter revenue doubled in the first year after the women meter attendants were hired.

Duffy argued that the public should be allowed to park free. He said the metered parking is mainly to accommodate the merchants.

"Wise up," Sample told him. "Do you want to go clear back to 1900 when we didn't have any cars."

Shortly afterward, the vote was taken on eliminating the "Meter Maid" jobs, with the three Republicans voting "no."

—:—

THE FINAL TOPIC was Duffy's proposal to eliminate the post of Commissioner Wilkinson, which pays about $100 weekly, and allow the treasurer to assume direct supervision of the office. Dawson, dean of boys at the high school, is paid $1,320 annually in the elective office.

"Don't you think Dawson could come in the morning and lay out the work and come back in the evening and check on it?" Duffy asked.

"Did you ask Dawson if he would do it that way?" Sample asked.

"No," Duffy replied.

"We're wrong in trying to tell an elected official how to operate his office," Sample said. "His office is created by state law, not city ordinances,"

Duffy pointed out that the income tax ordinance makes it the treasurer's responsibility to administer the tax system.

"Bert Dawson wouldn't assume a dual responsibility for what he's paid and neither would anyone else," Welch said.

"MR. DAWSON is very well pleased with Mr. Wilkinson's work, I know," Willshaw said.

Then the committee agreed to talk over the situation with the treasurer this morning, asking him if he would assume direct supervision of the tax office and allow elimination of Wilkinson's job.

Murray declared that Wilkinson appeared before Council several months ago and reported that he was preparing to file charges against several hundred people for failure to pay income tax.

"So far, I've read of only three people being taken to court," Murray said. "Has everyone in town paid their tax except these three?"

About 8:30 p.m., Duffy left his chair to talk with a visitor in the hall nearby. Welch moved for adjournment. No action was taken. Duffy returned, the discussion resumed for a few minutes and then the committee adjourned.

THEN MURRAY declared that it "was a party issue" at Monday night's session when Council split, 5-2, on an ordinance to pay a $3,890 balance to the Tri-State Asphalt Corp. for sealcoating several blacktop streets last fall. Murray and Duffy opposed the ordinance.

"That wasn't a party issue," Welch declared. "It was a bill left to us. The last administration assumed that contract and we had to pay."

"I don't think you are fair when you say we followed party lines," Willshaw replied. "I don't vote that way in Council. If you have a good idea and I'm in favor of it, I'll go along with you."

"It seems odd that when anything comes up that Duffy and I are for you are against it," Murray replied.

"I never vote party lines; I never did," Sample said. "Just because I don't vote that way you want me to doesn't mean I'm voting party lines."

"I vote according to my convictions," Welch told Murray.

"I'm glad you fellows cleared that up," Murray said. "I thought you were voting party lines."

—:—

"YOU DON'T HAVE to worry about that, Buster," Welch replied. "Both Republicans and Democrats elected me. Nobody paid for my campaign and I'm not obligated to anybody."

The meeting opened with a long discussion of the solicitor's office and his assistant, principally a review of the facts argued by both sides in the first two meetings.

Duffy asserted that Cooper does not need an assistant. The three Republicans argued, if the asitant's post is eliminated, it would mean making the solicitor's post full-time and paying him a much higher salary. The assistant serves as the prosecutor in Municipal Court. Cooper is a Democrat. Clark is a Republican.

"If it's a part-time job, why does he need an assistant," Duffy asked.

Willshaw pointed out that the solicitor's post pays $3,400. The entire expenses of the legal department are $8,000 a year, covering preparation of ordinances and resolutions for Council, legal advice for all departments, criminal prosecutions and defending the city in local and higher courts, Willshaw pointed out.

—:—

"IF YOU THINK we need a full-time solicitor, we probably could get one for $18,000 to $20,000 a year," he said.

Shortly afterward, the vote was taken on the assistant's post, ending the discussion.

The discussion on the engineer's assistants was very brief. Duffy referred to Cartwright, but Willshaw said Cartwright is only one of several paid out of the $4,000 appropriated annually for the engineer's assistants.

Welch scored Duffy for not writing letters to department heads, asking them to attend the meeting, as he had indicated he would do at the last session May 11. Duffy replied that both department heads and the general public were issued an invitation through newspaper stories. No department heads attended.

"Letters should have been written to the department heads so we could talk with them personally and get the facts, instead of dealing in hearsay and rumor," Welch said.

DUFFY SAID Cartwright "doesn't turn in any more bills for gasoline and oil for his car (for use on city business) since the auditor called him on it."

"He would have to have a requisition from the mayor or director before he could turn in a bill," Willshaw replied.

Next Duffy raised the question of the sewer inspector's post. But Willshaw pointed out Council received a letter several weeks ago from the Board of Public Utilities, which now administers the sewage system, explaining that it was in the process of enlarging Tice's duties.

Willshaw suggested marking time until the utilities board advises Council of the legislation it proposes to alter the inspector's duties.

"Do you fellows have any ideas on economy or are you just going to sit there and argue that these jobs are good," Murray asked.

"If we didn't have these employes the city would suffer because the jobs wouldn't be done efficiently," Sample replied.

"YOU TALK OF efficiency, but last Monday I counted 12 cars parked illegally on Market St. and not a ticket on one of them," Murray replied. The police and the 'Meter Maids' haven't been doing their job."

That swung the meeting to a long discussion of parking problems and enforcement.

"Did you file a complaint with the police department," Willshaw asked Murray. "We're a legislative body; we don't enforce the laws."

"We have four women walking around town, but if they're not ticketing cars they're not doing their duty," Murray replied. "I think two people could do the job instead of four. Personally I think the police department is doing a wonderful job. I'm not complaining about the police. But I'll bet you can find six or eight cars parked illegally on Market St. tomorrow morning before this comes out in the newspaper. Then there will be a storm of red tickets."

SAMPLE POINTED out many business houses in the heart of the shopping district do not have rear entrances and leniency sometimes is shown them or their customers in parking to unload or load bulky merchandise.

"If we eliminate the 'Meter Maids' we can save $13,150 a year," Duffy said. He said police could check parking violations while performing their regular duties.

"You can like the devil," Willshaw replied. "How much do you think they bring in." Willshaw added that meter revenue doubled in the first year after the women meter attendants were hired.

Duffy argued that the public should be allowed to park free. He said the metered parking is mainly to accommodate the merchants.

"Wise up," Sample told him. "Do you want to go clear back to 1900 when we didn't have any cars."

Shortly afterward, the vote was taken on eliminating the "Meter Maid" jobs, with the three Republicans voting "no."

—:—

THE FINAL TOPIC was Duffy's proposal to eliminate the post of Commissioner Wilkinson, which pays about $100 weekly, and allow the treasurer to assume direct supervision of the office. Dawson, dean of boys at the high school, is paid $1,320 annually in the elective office.

"Don't you think Dawson could come in the morning and lay out the work and come back in the evening and check on it?" Duffy asked.

"Did you ask Dawson if he would do it that way?" Sample asked.

"No," Duffy replied.

"We're wrong in trying to tell an elected official how to operate his office," Sample said. "His office is created by state law, not city ordinances,"

Duffy pointed out that the income tax ordinance makes it the treasurer's responsibility to administer the tax system.

"Bert Dawson wouldn't assume a dual responsibility for what he's paid and neither would anyone else," Welch said.

"MR. DAWSON is very well pleased with Mr. Wilkinson's work, I know," Willshaw said.

Then the committee agreed to talk over the situation with the treasurer this morning, asking him if he would assume direct supervision of the tax office and allow elimination of Wilkinson's job.

Murray declared that Wilkinson appeared before Council several months ago and reported that he was preparing to file charges against several hundred people for failure to pay income tax.

"So far, I've read of only three people being taken to court," Murray said. "Has everyone in town paid their tax except these three?"

About 8:30 p.m., Duffy left his chair to talk with a visitor in the hall nearby. Welch moved for adjournment. No action was taken. Duffy returned, the discussion resumed for a few minutes and then the committee adjourned.

Jones was also low on the plumbing, bidding $4,695. Salem Plumbing & Heating bid $5,644.

There were two bidders for the tile flooring — Durable Flooring of Youngstown, $1,384, and Kutsch & Sons of Wheeling, $1,662.

George VanHorne, executive head, said about $113,000 is available for the project, with bleachers and lockers yet to be obtained along with other furnishings. He indicated he was pleased with the bid figures.

He said the new larger gymnasium-auditorium will provide much more space than the present multi-purpose room at the school. The new gym, which will seat almost 500, will be built at the northwest corner of the school, while the new classrooms will be added to the northeast corner.

If the board awards contracts Monday night, it is probable construction will begin in two weeks. VanHorne said plans call for the new classrooms to be ready by fall, since the need for the classroom space is pressing. The gym may be ready by autumn.

Speeding Car Avoids Chase

Area police continued on the alert today for the driver of a red 1954 Pontiac sedan which raced through Chester late Friday night, hitting two parked autos and screeched across the Newell Bridge, passing the toll house on the wrong side with its lights out.

Police Chief Harold Davis said the auto was first spotted passing another vehicle on the right and crashing a red traffic signal at 5th St. in Chester, passing a red light and hitting two cars at 4th St. and passing another red signal at 3rd St.

Chief Davis said pursuit of the auto failed when it headed along California Ave.

Later, two Hancock County sheriff's deputies said the car sped across the Newell Bridge, hitting both sides of the span as it traveled over the Ohio River, then raced by the toll house "at a high rate of speed" in the wrong lane and without lights.

Chief Davis is also investigating two earlier hit-run mishaps — one reported at 5:30 p. m. on Shepherd Valley Rd. and another on Carolina Ave. at 10:30 p. m.

They've Decided To Save The Goose

Among the slogans we live by one is more threadbare than the one that warns us not to kill the goose that lays the golden eggs.

Yet, it is not strange that we admonish one another not to be foolish enough to kill the goose but rarely admonish one another to give it enough to eat?

Belatedly, here is President Kennedy admitting the economic recovery is in danger of "running out of gas" unless the government goes to work on a tax reform structure.

His words repeat the earnest advice of Secretary of Treasury Dillon, who told the New York Financial Writers Association of New York on June 4 that a "top-to-bottom reduction in the rates of income tax" is urgently necessary.

These two administration spokesmen are only repeating in turn what every economist has had on his mind for the last few years that the United States government, with no intention of killing the golden goose, has been starving the goose to death by diverting too much of the national wealth into U.S. Treasury receipts.

EVERY OBSERVER who has studied the remarkable growth rate of foreign economies in recent years has reached the same conclusion. It was made possible by heavy investments in new production facilities and by enlightened tax policies that gave their golden-egg-laying geese assurance of enough to eat.

Yet at the same time that the United States itself was putting up much of the capital for the new facilities in other countries—creating efficient cooperation abroad for its enterprise at home—it was short-changing its own producers.

Not only was it taking too much of their wealth for its own purposes, but it also was cutting into the purchasing power of consumers with tax rates that reached confiscatory levels in the upper brackets where enterprise must look for capital funds.

Except for a handful of stubborn social reformers who insist that the tax structure is a doll house for their own use, everybody has known for years, both subjectively and objectively, that the federal government was bleeding the economy with excessive tax rates.

IT WAS DOING this not as a reflection of any popular mandate but solely because its power to tax and destroy was subject to no restraint by popular action. The people's representatives and senators in Washington were the victims of pressures they were unable to resist.

Tax-spending proposals that would have been rebuffed coldly if made at state and local levels were virtually unopposed in the great log-rolling contest on the Potomac.

If anyone suggested that the goose might be weekening, the reaction in Washington always was the same. The country was warned sternly that the government was running short of money and needed much more than its laggard, lazy, looting, cheating taxpayers were providing. Therefore, they must be disciplined more sternly; their returns must be examined more critically; more revenue must be taken out at the source; tax collectors must be made of sterner stuff than ever before.

This has been the attitude about federal taxes.

CONFRONTED now with a lagging total for gross national production and the possibility of an aborted economic boom, the attitude is changing.

There must be sweeping tax reform, says Secretary Dillon. The administration must go to work on a tax reform program, says President Kennedy.

The gentlemen are to be congratulated on their decision to save the goose. The poor fowl may be wobbling, but it's the only one in the nation that can lay golden eggs in gratitude to those who treat it right.

One Year At A Time

That ultra-sensible idea of Sen. Lausche's about denying foreign aid to countries like Yugoslavia and Poland has no more chance in Congress than a snowball in Pecos, Texas, where the heat also is on.

But before the foreign-aid crowd ridicules Sen. Lausche and the 57 senators who agreed with him, one misrepresentation in particular should be straightened out.

This is the one which makes it appear that a country cut off from foreign aid because it was under communist domination would be forever beyond the pale—sentenced to live in limbo for eternity.

This is not the idea at all. All countries would be classified annually.

Any country shaking loose from communist domination could renew its claim on U.S. aid. Or if it never had had a previous claim, it could make its initial claim on firm evidence it was free from communist domination for the first time.

It is our thought that all countries should be on probation, not just communist-dominated countries, because some of the other dictatorships hate the United States just as much. But this is not in the Lausche amendment and probably isn't feasible. How would we decide about Spain and Portugal? Or France, if President de Gaulle happened to be in one of his dark moods?

But in general no government that insisted on spitting in Uncle Sam's face would have any claim on his tolerance. It would be an arguing point for international manners, which have been going to pot.

The truth is, nations never have loved one another. Everything they did was with an eye to the main chance. But when everybody knew it was done that way, no one was silly enough to insult a benefactor. And if a known enemy had whined for alms, the whole world would have broken into coarse laughter.

The idea is to restore the coarse laughter.

Dear Nephew: Once more I have been crushed spiritually by my failure to receive an invitation to address a graduating class. I had a commencement address ready.

Dear young companions, I was going to say, it is part of my pleasure to welcome you into the company of travelers along life's highway. Watch for route markers and broken glass.

But most particularly watch for con artists. You don't know what a con artist is? He is the fellow who tells you what he wants you to believe. And because he knows you will fight him if you know what he is doing, which is to rob you of your integrity, he wins your confidence. That's why he's a con artist.

It is customary on these occasions to fill young people full of inspirational guff. It is your good luck to have to listen to an old party who has been pumped so full of inspirational guff it has lost its savor. There will be no guff served here.

Instead, I want to tell you and tell you again that the most important thing you can do as you continue your education is to beware of the con artists. Some of them already have been working on you in school. They have told you a number of things that aren't true, though in their behalf I admit they acted in good faith. They didn't know any better. As we say in these parts, "They were iggernant."

They have told you things about history that are not true. They have led you to believe that certain rules will work when they actually won't, some of them have told you things about chemistry and physics that are false, unless they have been students themselves since the atom was split.

Much of the grammar they foisted off on you has been discredited. They told you things about arithmetic, algebra and geometry that were ridiculous. But don't hold that against them as individuals. They're typical. People have been doing the same thing to you ever since you were born.

Most of them meant no harm—but they're the worst kind. They're worse than the con artists, because they just do naturally what the con artists must perfect as an act to fool their victims.

Be on guard, please do.

This is all I have to say to you, but if you lived a milennium no one would give you better advice.

I would have said these things if anyone had asked me to make a commencement address. By the time I had padded it with horrible examples of things that aren't true, though people believed them, I could have filled the air for 45 minutes.

It's because everybody knew what I could do that made nobody ask me to do it. I would not be a dependable performer.

But the whole question is academic, isn't it?

There will be no point in writing to you for the next few weeks because you will be out of touch in the wilds of medieval England. Try to get in touch with the spirit of our common ancestors at Stonehenge.

The Hard Sell!

Fidel Sells Dope For Spare Parts

By Victor Riesel

In a small room the other day no one laughed when a special federal agent sat down, ran through confidential reports and came up with an angry snort at "Castro, the Cocaine King." These reports revealed that Castro operatives have set up field headquarters in some of our big cities —and have been offering this cruel narcotic, in bulk. One such bundle was valued at more than $8 million.

Victor Riesel

The "stuff" has been flooding the United States through entry points in Florida and New York. It is refined in Bolivia. Cuba then packages it. It is smuggled into our country to raise hard currency to pay for hardware and spare parts which are, in turn, smuggled out of the United States into Cuba, via Vera Cruz mostly.

THIS COMMUNIST Cuban import-export ring was first pierced last Jan. 27. Then undercover agents of Harry Anslinger's Federal Bureau of Narcotics arrested one of Castro's intimates — Juvenito Pablo Guerra.

Raising money for guns and, later, for vitally needed industrial supplies and spare material has long been Guerra's assignment.

When the agents got into his home in Woodside, a New York City residential area, they found what, in effect, was an international Communist field headquarters, as well as the operations center for the cocaine ring.

Guerra had his own artistic inclination. He lined his walls with photos of Castro in action. Also a large Cuban Communist flag. Also Sino-Soviet literature.

Also Guerra carried a gun. He lost it when he tried to kill a government agent. The Castro operative now is doing 15 years.

There undoubtedly are other such field operations.

THE CUBANS need our dollars to pay for imports. Not food, mind you. For there is a deliberate Havana policy of starving the people rather than spending hard currency on food.

We know this because Castro and his Sino - Soviet "advisory" commission can order food and medicine in the United States quite legally. The United States embargo does not exclude such sales and shipments.

But there have been no requests for these U. S. supplies. Castro could pay cash for this vitally needed relief — especially for the medicine — now that Cuba is practically bereft of doctors.

Mr. Anslinger has told this columnist that Cuba now handles more cocaine than does the rest of the world. At $200,000 a pound, such ghoulish traffic brings in quite a haul of cash.

INSTEAD of ordering food and medicine, the Cuban Communist government illegally buys spare parts here. These are needed to replace worn-out parts in American-made autos, aircraft, sugar and oil refining mills, and farm machinery.

Apparently, there are some in the United States who are willing to take this dirty money. These dealers consign their goods, mostly to Mexico, for reshipment to Havana.

Recently, the Department of Commerce's special compliance and enforcement divisions, working with the customs bureau, have beefed up their force of inspectors at the Mexican border and in Mexico itself. In the first quarter of this year, they grabbed four shipments totaling $343,590 worth of hardware bound for Castro.

Castro is even deliberately starving the Cubans by cutting wheat orders from Canada to preserve his cocaine cash.

CUBA'S FOOD relief comes from the starvation skeletal economy behind the Iron and Bamboo curtains. Though Russia is rationing and hiking its food prices and though hunger is driving Chinese refugees into the barbed wire around Hong Kong, Castro's island is being kept alive by Sino-Soviet shipments.

The other week, the Peiping government sent some 20,000 tons of rice — and munitions. Soviet-bloc ships constantly unload food — including scarce canned and frozen meat condensed milk, tons of butter, millions of tons of fish—and munitions — in Havana.

Obviously, Sino - Soviet leaders are willing to strip their own dwindling food stockpiles for Cuba. Not out of comradeship. They know that militia men with empty stomachs won't have the strength or the energy — ideological and physical — to empty guns and cannons on future anti-Communist invaders.

Kennedy Proposal Seen As Appeal For Votes

President Kennedy still shows no awareness of the serious plight of the American economy today. At his Thursday news conference he made no mention of the continuing demands of labor union leaders who seek to increase wage costs. Nor did he indicate any change in the administration's policy in forcing a profit squeeze by condemning price increases that are designed to take care of such labor costs. This dilemma, however, has been the basic cause of the stock market's recent collapse.

David Lawrence

Mr. Kennedy chose instead to regard the market's fall as merely the natural result of the overpricing of securities and the ending of an era of inflation. He thinks it's all just speculative and—like President Hoover in 1929—he is arguing that conditions are fundamentally sound.

The President doesn't seem to have made up his mind just when a general tax cut that might be helpful to economic progress should be made for he talked vaguely at his news conference about postponing action on such a measure till the session of Congress which begins next January.

He said the bill could be made retroactive so it would take effect on the first of next year but it's difficult to do this, as the whole nation of taxpayers will find it hard to estimate their taxes while Congress is debating a change in rates.

Also, the President has tied into the same measure what he calls "offsetting" tax reforms to close loopholes and cut down loss of tax revenue. The President admits the net tax reduction will not be large. This will mean long debate and delay.

Maybe Mr. Kennedy thinks that Congress, which is to get the text of his tax proposals at the end of this summer, will be under such pressure from the people that an extra session may have to be called after the congressional elections in November to enact the bill.

THESE TACTICS could boomerang. The people would be voting then on an expectation instead of a concrete piece of legislation. Is this fair to the people? Aren't they entitled to know in advance what their taxes will be for the year ahead, and to have a chance to voice approval or disapproval at the polls?

Practical politics may dictate the answer that it is better to keep the people guessing and let them hope they may get more than they really will. To tell them exactly how little they will receive—when they have been led to expect more—is not supposed to be a wise strategy a few weeks before an election.

The whole approach is political. The administration isn't really anxious to grant any tax cut. It doesn't actually plan to let the corporation tax rate go down very much, if at all.

The sop to the industrial world is supposed to be in the form of two tax benefits. One, which will not be enacted by law but by revising existing Treasury regulations, would permit certain industries to shorten the period on which depreation rates are computed.

The other would be a law giving to certain industries an 8 per cent investment credit. But this applies only to new machinery and equipment. It doesn't cover the whole problem of modernization which confronts companies in the heavy-goods industries.

This proposal has been before Congress for many months now. It has awakened little enthusiasm and a great deal of opposition. It really doesn't solve the problem of depreciation rules which for many years have been in need of a general overhauling.

THE BANDYING about of such figures as a tax credit of $1.3 billion for new machinery and a tax saving of $1.2 billion through the new depreciation rules and perhaps another $200 million in various reductions of special taxes —such as those on transportation —will give the impression that a substantial tax cut is being recommended by the President.

In an economy which is supposed to have a gross national output estimated at somewhere between $550 and $565 billion this year, these are relatively trivial tax reductions.

Mr. Kennedy talked also about the possibility of an $8 billion surplus in the federal budget if the economy were to operate at full capacity.

This is a figure picked out of the air by his advisers who represent the school of thought which holds that a tax cut is periodically necessary to prevent too great a drain on the economy by taxes within a given period.

The American people, on the other hand, aren't worrying today about how the tax totals might theoretically become too big a slice of a prosperous economy. What they want to see first is a prosperous economy achieved. They then can worry about whether too much money is being taken out for taxes.

The real concern today is how to stimulate an economy in which profits have been squeezed by skyrocketing wage costs that have won the approval of an administration dependent for political support on the votes and campaign contributions furnished by union labor.

THE REAL ISSUE isn't being faced—whether monopoly power on the wage-cost side is ever going to be broken up just as monopoly power on the management side is forbidden by law.

To promise tax cuts across the board in 1963 to individuals will spur consumer spending and bring back fears of inflation. To give the proposed tax cuts to a few save those really in trouble today.

The President has not come to grips with the immediate situation. He is taking a big risk politically, too. He may get the surprise of his life in the November elections. It is customary for the people to vote against the party in power when an economic recession is on—and there are signs that the forecast by the stock market of continued recession is more likely to turn out to be true than the optimistic statements of a big recovery by next November being issued in political precincts nowadays in Washington.

Letters To The Editor

I have just finished reading Mr. Keith Smith's letter about the Little League boys selling tags and it is really disgusting.

I was downtown Saturday and observed the boys and they certainly didn't beg or whine when they asked if you would care to buy a tag. Quite the opposite. They were polite and mannerly and most of them thanked you when you did buy.

You say they beg. What do your other organizations that have tag days do? Most of the money collected goes to further studies and stamp out disease. Your churches operate on the money you contribute, but you just single out the children. How about the telethons they have on TV? Anyone who has a child or children can understand their pleas and hope they can find a cure for leukemia, cancer, MS and cerebral palsy, but don't you consider that begging? Maybe you don't have children or yours are all grown up. These are usually the kind that can tell you how yours should be raised or what they didn't allow theirs to do when they were little.

Another thing is that as long as they are playing ball they aren't running the streets getting into trouble. I'll give for that any day.

You say that you are in favor of motherhood, Little League, etc. Well I'm in favor of putting big signs on people like you asking that you not have to give for toys or anything else. People would then leave you alone. In fact if there were many people with your attitude I'd be in favor of abolishing motherhood so you would all be stamped out.

They've Decided To Save The Goose

Among the slogans we live by one is more threadbare than the one that warns us not to kill the goose that lays the golden eggs.

Yet, it is not strange that we admonish one another not to be foolish enough to kill the goose but rarely admonish one another to give it enough to eat?

Belatedly, here is President Kennedy admitting the economic recovery is in danger of "running out of gas" unless the government goes to work on a tax reform structure.

His words repeat the earnest advice of Secretary of Treasury Dillon, who told the New York Financial Writers Association of New York on June 4 that a "top-to-bottom reduction in the rates of income tax" is urgently necessary.

These two administration spokesmen are only repeating in turn what every economist has had on his mind for the last few years that the United States government, with no intention of killing the golden goose, has been starving the goose to death by diverting too much of the national wealth into U.S. Treasury receipts.

EVERY OBSERVER who has studied the remarkable growth rate of foreign economies in recent years has reached the same conclusion. It was made possible by heavy investments in new production facilities and by enlightened tax policies that gave their golden-egg-laying geese assurance of enough to eat.

Yet at the same time that the United States itself was putting up much of the capital for the new facilities in other countries—creating efficient cooperation abroad for its enterprise at home—it was short-changing its own producers.

Not only was it taking too much of their wealth for its own purposes, but it also was cutting into the purchasing power of consumers with tax rates that reached confiscatory levels in the upper brackets where enterprise must look for capital funds.

Except for a handful of stubborn social reformers who insist that the tax structure is a doll house for their own use, everybody has known for years, both subjectively and objectively, that the federal government was bleeding the economy with excessive tax rates.

IT WAS DOING this not as a reflection of any popular mandate but solely because its power to tax and destroy was subject to no restraint by popular action. The people's representatives and senators in Washington were the victims of pressures they were unable to resist.

Tax-spending proposals that would have been rebuffed coldly if made at state and local levels were virtually unopposed in the great log-rolling contest on the Potomac.

If anyone suggested that the goose might be weekening, the reaction in Washington always was the same. The country was warned sternly that the government was running short of money and needed much more than its laggard, lazy, looting, cheating taxpayers were providing. Therefore, they must be disciplined more sternly; their returns must be examined more critically; more revenue must be taken out at the source; tax collectors must be made of sterner stuff than ever before.

This has been the attitude about federal taxes.

CONFRONTED now with a lagging total for gross national production and the possibility of an aborted economic boom, the attitude is changing.

There must be sweeping tax reform, says Secretary Dillon. The administration must go to work on a tax reform program, says President Kennedy.

The gentlemen are to be congratulated on their decision to save the goose. The poor fowl may be wobbling, but it's the only one in the nation that can lay golden eggs in gratitude to those who treat it right.

The point is it could lay more eggs than it ever laid before. The government would lose nothing by reducing tax rates if there were more income to collect taxes on.

Ready To Move

The "wild men of Borneo", in marked contrast to Americans, are about to move from high-density apartment dwellings into one - family huts.

The Sea Dyak people of Sarawak, a British colony on Borneo, have lived for centuries in communal longhouses. Built on high stilts, the barracks - type structure often houses a village's entire population.

Government planners hope to introduce a cash - crop economy to give each Dyak family its own thatch hut and farm plot. The former headhunters have traditionally practiced collective ownership of housing, land and livestock.

Kidney - shaped Sarawak faces the South China Sea along the northwest coast of Borneo, third largest island in the world. The steamy colony covers 600 miles of coast and reaches back 40 to 150 miles into mountainous rain forests — home of the orangutan, clouded leopard, a snake that can glide from trees, and a red-and-white flower the size of a parasol.

Until 1946, Sarawak was the private kingdom of a British family of White Rajas. Sir James Brooke, a wealthy adventurer and traveler, was made the first Raja of Sarawak in 1841, after helping Borneo's Sultan of Brunei subdue rebellious tribes. For more than a century, the Brooke rulers printed their own stamps, flew their own national flag, and maintained a private army and police force.

Politics And Taxes

Kennedy Proposal Seen As Appeal For Votes

President Kennedy still shows no awareness of the serious plight of the American economy today. At his Thursday news conference he made no mention of the continuing demands of labor union leaders who seek to increase wage costs. Nor did he indicate any change in the administration's policy in forcing a profit squeeze by condemning price increases that are designed to take care of such labor costs. This dilemma, however, has been the basic cause of the stock market's recent collapse.

David Lawrence

Mr. Kennedy chose instead to regard the market's fall as merely the natural result of the over-pricing of securities and the ending of an era of inflation. He thinks it's all just speculative and—like President Hoover in 1929—he is arguing that conditions are fundamentally sound.

The President doesn't seem to have made up his mind just when a general tax cut that might be helpful to economic progress should be made for he talked vaguely at his news conference about postponing action on such a measure till the session of Congress which begins next January.

He said the bill could be made retroactive so it would take effect on the first of next year but it's difficult to do this, as the whole nation of taxpayers will find it hard to estimate their taxes while Congress is debating a change in rates.

Also, the President has tied into the same measure what he calls "offsetting" tax reforms to close loopholes and cut down loss of tax revenue. The President admits the net tax reduction will not be large. This will mean long debate and delay.

Maybe Mr. Kennedy thinks that Congress, which is to get the text of his tax proposals at the end of this summer, will be under such pressure from the people that an extra session may have to be called after the congressional elections in November to enact the bill.

THESE TACTICS could boomerang. The people would be voting then on an expectation instead of a concrete piece of legislation. Is this fair to the people? Aren't they entitled to know in advance what their taxes will be for the year ahead, and to have a chance to voice approval or disapproval at the polls?

Practical politics may dictate the answer that it is better to keep the people guessing and let them hope they may get more than they really will. To tell them exactly how little they will receive—when they have been led to expect more—is not supposed to be a wise strategy a few weeks before an election.

The whole approach is political. The administration isn't really anxious to grant any tax cut. It doesn't actually plan to let the corporation tax rate go down very much, if at all.

The sop to the industrial world is supposed to be in the form of two tax benefits. One, which will not be enacted by law but by revising existing Treasury regulations, would permit certain industries to shorten the period over which depreation rates are computed.

The other would be a law giving to certain industries an 8 per cent investment credit. But this applies only to new machinery and equipment. It doesn't cover the whole problem of modernization which confronts companies in the heavy-goods industries.

This proposal has been before Congress for many months now. It has awakened little enthusiasm and a great deal of opposition. It really doesn't solve the problem of depreciation rules which for many years have been in need of a general overhauling.

THE BANDYING about of such figures as a tax credit of $1.5 billion for new machinery and a tax saving of $1.2 billion through the new depreciation rules and perhaps another $200 million in various reductions of special taxes—such as those on transportation—will give the impression that a substantial tax cut is being recommended by the President.

In an economy which is supposed to have a gross national output estimated at somewhere between $550 and $565 billion this year, these are relatively trivial tax reductions.

Mr. Kennedy talked also about the possibility of an $8 billion surplus in the federal budget if the economy were to operate at full capacity.

This is a figure picked out of the air by his advisers who represent the school of thought which holds that a tax cut is periodically necessary to prevent too great a drain on the economy by taxes within a given period.

The American people, on the other hand, aren't worrying today about how the tax totals might theoretically become too big a slice of a prosperous economy. What they want to see first is a prosperous economy achieved. They then can worry about whether too much money is being taken out for taxes.

The real concern today is how to stimulate an economy in which profits have been squeezed by skyrocketing wage costs that have won the approval of an administration dependent for political support on the votes and campaign contributions furnished by union labor.

THE REAL ISSUE isn't being faced—whether monopoly power on the wage-cost side is ever going to be broken up just as monopoly power on the management side is forbidden by law.

To promise tax cuts across the board in 1963 to individuals will spur consumer spending and bring back fears of inflation. To give the proposed tax cuts to a few save those really in trouble today.

The President has not come to grips with the immediate situation. He is taking a big risk politically, too. He may get the surprise of his life in the November elections. It is customary for the people to vote against the party in power when an economic recession is on—and there are signs that the forecast by the stock market of continued recession is more likely to turn out to be true than the optimistic statements of a big recovery by next November being issued in political precincts nowadays in Washington.

Letters To The Editor

I have just finished reading Mr. Keith Smith's letter about the Little League boys selling tags and it is really disgusting.

I was downtown Saturday and observed the boys and they certainly didn't beg or whine when they asked if you would care to buy a tag. Quite the opposite. They were polite and mannerly and most of them thanked you when you did buy.

You say they beg. What do your other organizations that have tag days do? Most of the money collected goes to further studies and stamp out disease. Your churches operate on the money you contribute, but you just single out the children. How about the telethons they have on TV? Anyone who has a child or children can understand their pleas and hope they can find a cure for leukemia, cancer, MS and cerebral palsy, but don't you consider that begging? Maybe you don't have children or yours are all grown up. These are usually the kind that can tell you how yours should be raised or what they didn't allow theirs to do when they were little.

Another thing is that as long as they are playing ball they aren't running the streets getting into trouble. I'll give for that any day.

You say that you are in favor of motherhood, Little League, etc. Well I'm in favor of putting big signs on people like you asking that you not have to give for toys or anything else. People would then leave you alone. In fact if there were many people with your attitude I'd be in favor of abolishing motherhood so you would all be stamped out.

Rote Memorization Helps Student

If I had a child in the fourth, eighth or tenth grade—anywhere above the second grade—I'd want his teacher to require him to memorize by rote a number of short selections of great prose and poetry. Purpose? For him to have some choice bits of literature stores in his head, and to practice him in the discipline of hard mental work required in such memorizing. Judging from the many letters about bright children who have never learned to "bone" or go over and over some essential symbols, words and groups of words, and having talked with a number of school laggards of better - than - average native mentality, I have arrived at the conclusion that here often is the hub of their learning lag at school.

DR. PEALE

ONE HIGH SCHOOL lad, barely passing in Latin, let slip the information that he often failed on vocabulary tests.

When I asked him if he knew beforehand the words on which he would be tested, he said he did.

Then I added, "You could really make 100 on those tests if you wanted to."

He answered, "Yes, but it's such hard work to keep going over and over them till you know them by heart."

I got a similar reply from a boy lagging in French. Neither of these lads had effective school discipline at memorizing anything accurately.

Where is the second, third or fourth grader who is required to learn accurately by heart the spelling of words, number combinations, tables of measurements, even a few strategic dates in history? He is exposed to such items and is tested over and over on them before he has mastered them, thus he gets practice at making mistakes!

WHERE HAVE YOU seen a child required at school to spell over and over a word while looking carefully at it till he can surely spell it accurately while looking away from it? Or to learn a basic number combination like 9 plus 8 equals 17? Nearly always he repeats the combination only once or twice and then goes on, not dwelling long enough on it to have really memorized it.

I assume that the discipline to be derived from such memorizing would have some carryover in the memorizing of hundreds of other essential items in everyday school learning. The main value would be the self-discipline gained in sticking to the job till it was mastered.

To the critic who objects to memorizing anything till it is understood, I would reply, "See that he understands it, if you prefer, before memorizing it."

I would maintain, moreover, that many beautiful things are worth memorizing before they are fully understood.

What are your thoughts on this whole matter?

Twins And Tribe Notch Victories

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

First it was Ralph Terry. Then it was Bill Stafford. Now it's Jim Coates. And in the last three games the New York Yankees' problem-plagued pitching staff has allowed a grand total of eight hits and no runs.

Coates added to the string Friday night, taking over when ace left-hander Whitey Ford was forced out with shoulder pains after the first inning and permitting only one hit the rest of the way as the Yankees blanked Baltimore 1-0.

It was the third consecutive shutout or the Yankee mound crew, weakened by the absence of relief specialist Luis Arroyo and Ford's inability to post a victory since May 9.

Ford gave up one hit, making it a two-hitter for the Ford-Coates combination and extending the scoreless innings streak to 28 1-3.

The latest victory kept the Yankees' American League lead at one game over the Minnesota Twins, who edged the Chicago White Sox 2-1. Third-place Cleveland belted Boston 15-9 with a six-run uprising in the 13th inning and remained two games off the pace.

The Los Angeles Angels got a two-hit pitching performance from newly-acquired Don Lee and defeated Kansas City 7-1, and Detroit and Washington split a doubleheader. The Tigers took the first 7-6 in 10 innings, then were shut out 1-0 on six hits by Dave Stenhouse.

Held to two hits by Chuck Estrada for seven innings, the Yankees cut loose against reliever Hoyt Wilhelm (2-4) when Estrada was forced to leave in the eighth with a pulled elbow muscle. Singles by Tom Tresh, Coates and Bobby Richardson accounted for the game's lone run.

Don Mincher broke up a pitching duel between the Twins' Jack Kralick (5-4) and John Buzhardt (6-5) of the White Sox when he lined a single in the last of the eighth, driving in Lenny Green with the deciding run.

Ed Bressoud's two-out homer for the Red Sox in the last of the ninth tied that game, but the Indians wound up winning it big when Willie Kirkland's two-run homer started a six-run 13th inning outburst that put it away.

Lee (4-3) making his first appearance for the Angels since they acquired him in a trade with Minnesota, gave up the A's only run when Joe Azcue doubled in the sixth and eventually scored on Bobby Del Greco's grounder. Lee Thomas led an 11-hit Los Angeles attack with three hits, and four runs batted in—three on a seventh inning homer.

The Tigers scored the tying run in their opener on Chuck Cottier's error, then won it in the 10th for Ron Nischwitz (2-0) on Rocky Colavito's sacrifice fly. Stenhouse (4-1) became the first pitcher to shut out the Tigers this season when he turned in a six-hitter in the nightcap.

Cardinals Knock Giants From Top

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Who says you can't steal first?

The Los Angeles Dodgers did it Friday night, snatching first place in the National League on the base stealing of mercurial Maury Wills. The swift shortstop ran the Dodgers to a 4-3 victory over the Houston Colts when he walked in the 13th inning, swiped two bases, then scored the winning run on a short sacrifice fly. The steals were his 31st and 32nd this season.

The Dodgers took a half-game edge over the San Francisco Giants, who were trounced by the St. Louis Cardinals 8-4. It was the third setback in a row for the Giants and the fourth straight victory for the Cards, on the rebound after a string of eight defeats.

Elsewhere in the league, Philadelphia beat Cincinnati's slumping Reds 10-3, and the New York Mets snapped their losing streak at 17, trimming the Chicago Cubs 4-3 in the opener of a doubleheader. The Cubs won 3-2 in the second game, called in the eighth inning because of darkness. Rain washed out the Pittsburgh-Braves game at Milwaukee.

Wills drew a walk off reliever Don McMahon at Houston, stole second and third, then sprinted home on Willie Davis' fly to center. Larry Sherry held off the stubborn Colts in the last inning and was the winner with 4 1-3 innings of scoreless relief.

Ken Boyer and Bill White led a 14-hit barrage and Lindy McDaniel turned in a perfect relief stint as the Cards rolled over the Giants, who find themselves out of first place for the first time since April 30. Boyer climaxed a decisive four-run uprising in the fifth against Juan Marichal by homering with one on and also had a single. White knocked in three runs with a homer and two singles.

Dennis Bennett's four-hit pitching and the Phils' five-run fifth inning pushed the Reds to their fifth straight loss. Bennett chipped in with a two-run single during the fifth as the Phils piled up a 7-0 lead against loser Johnny Klippstein and reliever Moe Drabowsky. Roy Sievers knocked in three Philadelphia runs with a double and single, while Tony Taylor and Don Demeter added homers to the winners' offensive.

The Mets ended their long famine and made it 4-for-4 against the Cubs in the ninth inning of the opener at Chicago when Charlie Neal sent in the winning run with a bases-loaded sacriice fly. Jay Hook was the winner and Glen Hobbie was pinned with his seventh loss in eight decisions.

Ron Santo, who had a two-run homer in the first game, decided the second when he singled across two runs in the seventh, breaking a 1-1 tie.

Burbicks Rip Rival By 19-2

Banging out a total of 19 hits, Burbick's trounced Woodbine, 19-2, for one of the most decisive Pony League triumphs of the season Friday night at Dopler Field.

Bill Smith of Burbick's pitched a one - hitter in handcuffing the laundrymen over six innings.

Burbick's tallied a solo run in the first inning, and the dike really opened in the second when 10 more were plated. Starting pitcher Larry Radcliff of Woodbine was chased from the mound under the heavy assault.

Shortstop Joe Massey of Burbick's, batting No. 3, starred at the plate with four hits in five trips, with the big one a homer in the first inning.

Stine, Crable and Silliman each belted two hits for the winners.

Brewer of Woodbine, batting in the leadoff position, collected his team's only hit.

Vets Glass Pulls Upset In Little Loop Feature

Two close games and a romp marked Little League action Friday, with one of the leading squads upset by one of the "cellar dwindling" teams.

Victim of the upset was Golden Star, the front-runner in the American Division, which lost only its second game of the season.

Veteran Plate Glass rose to new heights to edge the dairymen, 4-3, with Morgan getting the pitching victory. Burcham was the loser. B. Kinsey stroked two singles for Veterans, while Ray Beadnell and Gary Klembara singled and doubled for the losers.

In another tight game, McBurney's continued on the trail of success with a 7-6 verdict over Burbick's. Bill Cooper's sacrifice fly in the sixth scored Jim Gooding for the winning run.

Bernard Lovejoy, who fanned four, was the winner, besting Berhar, who struck out six and walked one. Longston had three hits, and Berhard, a homer, for the losers.

For McBurney's, Dan Myers and Jimmy Andrason had two hits each.

In the night's only runaway, Millirons walloped Travelers Hotel, 11-0, with Bob Bartram collecting the shutout victory. He fanned four. Craig Whittington was the loser. Travelers got two hits, with one a double by Ronald Bosworth. Danny Cunningham had two singles, and Bartram, three hits, for the winning Milliron squad.

Lawyers Win 1 To 0 Battle

Ending six full scoreless innings of a hot pitcher's battle, the Bar Association managed a solo run in the top of the seventh and went on to whip the Dental Society, 1-0, in Colt League action Friday night.

The Lawyers, moving into first place in the league, tallied one late run when catcher Roy Scott drew a walk to open the inning, stole the next two bases, and romped home when a balk was charged against pitcher Don Welch of the Dental Society.

Welch, a southpaw, and Ron Burns of the Bar Association engaged in a sizzling pitcher's duel and the balk proved a costly maneuver.

Welch scattered four hits in going the route, and struck out six and walked a pair. Burns, showing great control, fanned eight and walked nobody.

Phil Stewart, shortstop for the winners, banged a double for the game's only extra-base hit.

The Dental Society dropped into a two-way tie for second place.

Beatty Claims 8:29.8 World 2-Mile Record

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Explosive little Jim Beatty claimed a world record of 8:29.8 for two miles Saturday, the first by an American at this distance since 1936.

The 5-foot-6, 126-pound Beatty uncorked the run in the Southern Pacific AAU Track and Field Championships at Occidental College's Patterson Field Friday night. He races for the Los Angeles Track Club.

He bettered the recognized record of 8:32 flat made by Australia's Albert Thomas in Dublin, Ireland, Aug. 7, 1958.

Murray Halberg of Australia was credited with 8:30 flat in a race in Finland in 1961 but it was never recognized.

The 27 - year - old native New Yorker, adopted son of Charlotte, N.C., and now living here, disclosed he took dead aim at the record.

"I wouldn't have started it if I didn't think I had a chance for a record," Beatty said.

It was the dark-haired, personable Beatty's first run since March 31 in the Santa Barbara Easter Relays when he clicked off 4:02.6 in the anchor lap of a medley relay. He has been sidelined with three separate leg injuries.

The last time an American's name graced the record book was that of Don Lash of Indiana, who was credited with being the first American to break nine minutes in the 2-mile grind.

En route to the 2 - mile mark Beatty broke the American record of 8:40.8 set by Halberg at Palo Alto Jan. 7, 1961, and the American citizen's mark of 8:42.5 held by Dyrol Burleson of Oregon.

New Jersey Fight Winds Up With Fans In Battle Royal

TOTOWA, N.J. (AP) — "Holy cow," said promoter Lou Durva today, "there I was in the ring and everyone is swinging at everyone else.

"It's a real donnybrook. Me, I'm in there as a peacemaker. Then they start swinging at me. So I get out in a hurry. I don't want to ge killed."

That's how the Don McAteer-Tom McNeeley heavyweight bout wound up here Friday night — with at least 20 fans in the ring, all swinging for all they were worth.

The cops arrived on the scene and escorted McNeeley, McAteer and referee Paul Cavalier out. Cavalier had just awarded the bout to McAteer after disqualifying McNeeley for low blows.

But it's doubtful if anyone heard him. The 2,000-off spectators in Gladiators arena were in an uproar. Some had climbed in the ring even before he announced his decision at 2:40 of the sixth of the scheduled 10.

Cavalier, senior referee in New Jersey, warned both McNeeley, who lost to Floyd Patterson for the world heavyweight title last December, and McAteer for low blows and butting. Then in the fifth, he stepped between them again and warned both.

Just as the fifth ended, a group of fans at ringside started throwing punches at each other.

In the sixth, McNeeley — who hasn't won a fight since the Patterson bout—had McAteer on the ropes. He fired four low blows and that was enough for Cavalier.

Snead's 136 Leads By 2 In Classic Golf

CLIFTON, N.J. (AP) — For once, Sam Snead wasn't complaining about his putting — he couldn't very well.

But he must have thrown a few apprehensive glances over his shoulder long after leaving the Upper Montclair Country Club, where he posted a second round 66 and a 136 total for the 36-hole lead in the $100,000 Classic Golf Tournament.

Snead, who habitually moans about putts that won't drop, canned a dozen good ones early Friday. Then, with hardly a comment, he disappeared while the rest of the field tried to catch up to him.

No one succeeded in catching Sam during the long, hot afternoon, but Gene Littler, Dave Marr and Earl Stewart all came close. They tied for second at the 36-hole mark with 138s.

Twins And Tribe Notch Victories

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

First it was Ralph Terry. Then it was Bill Stafford. Now it's Jim Coates. And in the last three games the New York Yankees' problem-plagued pitching staff has allowed a grand total of eight hits and no runs.

Coates added to the string Friday night, taking over when ace left-hander Whitey Ford was forced out with shoulder pains after the first inning and permitting only one hit the rest of the way as the Yankees blanked Baltimore 1-0.

It was the third consecutive shutout or the Yankee mound crew, weakened by the absence of relief specialist Luis Arroyo and Ford's inability to post a victory since May 9.

Ford gave up one hit, making it a two-hitter for the Ford-Coates combination and extending the scoreless innings streak to 28 1-3.

The latest victory kept the Yankees' American League lead at one game over the Minnesota Twins, who edged the Chicago White Sox 2-1. Third-place Cleveland belted Boston 15-9 with a six-run uprising in the 13th inning and remained two games off the pace.

The Los Angeles Angels got a two-hit pitching performance from newly-acquired Don Lee and defeated Kansas City 7-1, and Detroit and Washington split a doubleheader. The Tigers took the first 7-6 in 10 innings, then were shut out 1-0 on six hits by Dave Stenhouse.

Held to two hits by Chuck Estrada for seven innings, the Yankees cut loose against reliever Hoyt Wilhelm (2-4) when Estrada was forced to leave in the eighth with a pulled elbow muscle. Singles by Tom Tresh, Coates and Bobby Richardson accounted for the game's lone run.

Don Mincher broke up a pitching duel between the Twins' Jack Kralick (5-4) and John Buzhardt (6-5) of the White Sox when he lined a single in the last of the eighth, driving in Lenny Green with the deciding run.

Ed Bressoud's two-out homer for the Red Sox in the last of the ninth tied that game, but the Indians wound up winning it big when Willie Kirkland's two-run homer started a six-run 13th inning outburst that put it away.

Lee (4-3) making his first appearance for the Angels since they acquired him in a trade with Minnesota, gave up the A's only run when Joe Azcue doubled in the sixth and eventually scored on Bobby Del Greco's grounder. Lee Thomas led an 11-hit Los Angeles attack with three hits, and four runs batted in—three on a seventh inning homer.

The Tigers scored the tying run in their opener on Chuck Cottier's error, then won it in the 10th for Ron Nischwitz (2-0) on Rocky Colavito's sacrifice fly. Stenhouse (4-1) became the first pitcher to shut out the Tigers this season when he turned in a six-hitter in the nightcap.

Cardinals Knock Giants From Top

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Who says you can't steal first?

The Los Angeles Dodgers did it Friday night, snatching first place in the National League on the base stealing of mercurial Maury Wills. The swift shortstop ran the Dodgers to a 4-3 victory over the Houston Colts when he walked in the 13th inning, swiped two bases, then scored the winning run on a short sacrifice fly. The steals were his 31st and 32nd this season.

The Dodgers took a half-game edge over the San Francisco Giants, who were trounced by the St. Louis Cardinals 8-4. It was the third setback in a row for the Giants and the fourth straight victory for the Cards, on the rebound after a string of eight defeats.

Elsewhere in the league, Philadelphia beat Cincinnati's slumping Reds 10-3, and the New York Mets snapped their losing streak at 17, trimming the Chicago Cubs 4-3 in the opener of a doubleheader. The Cubs won 3-2 in the second game, called in the eighth inning because of darkness. Rain washed out the Pittsburgh-Braves game at Milwaukee.

Wills drew a walk off reliever Don McMahon at Houston, stole second and third, then sprinted home on Willie Davis' fly to center. Larry Sherry held off the stubborn Colts in the last inning and was the winner with 4 1-3 innings of scoreless relief.

Ken Boyer and Bill White led a 14-hit barrage and Lindy McDaniel turned in a perfect relief stint as the Cards rolled over the Giants, who find themselves out of first place for the first time since April 30. Boyer climaxed a decisive four-run uprising in the fifth against Juan Marichal by homering with one on and also had a single. White knocked in three runs with a homer and two singles.

Dennis Bennett's four-hit pitching and the Phils' five-run fifth inning pushed the Reds to their fifth straight loss. Bennett chipped in with a two-run single during the fifth as the Phils piled up a 7-0 lead against loser Johnny Klippstein and reliever Moe Drabowsky. Roy Sievers knocked in three Philadelphia runs with a double and single, while Tony Taylor and Don Demeter added homers to the winners' offensive.

The Mets ended their long famine and made it 4-for-4 against the Cubs in the ninth inning of the opener at Chicago when Charlie Neal sent in the winning run with a bases-loaded sacriice fly. Jay Hook was the winner and Glen Hobbie was pinned with his seventh loss in eight decisions.

Ron Santo, who had a two-run homer in the first game, decided the second when he singled across two runs in the seventh, breaking a 1-1 tie.

Burbicks Rip Rival By 19-2

Banging out a total of 19 hits, Burbick's trounced Woodbine, 19-2, for one of the most decisive Pony League triumphs of the season Friday night at Dopler Field.

Bill Smith of Burbick's pitched a one - hitter in handcuffing the laundrymen over six innings.

Burbick's tallied a solo run in the first inning, and the dike really opened in the second when 10 more were plated. Starting pitcher Larry Radcliff of Woodbine was chased from the mound under the heavy assault.

Shortstop Joe Massey of Burbick's, batting No. 3, starred at the plate with four hits in five trips, with the big one a homer in the first inning.

Stine, Crable and Silliman each belted two hits for the winners.

Brewer of Woodbine, batting in the leadoff position, collected his team's only hit.

For McBurney's, Dan Myers and Jimmy Andrason had two hits each.

Lawyers Win 1 To 0 Battle

Ending six full scoreless innings of a hot pitcher's battle, the Bar Association managed a solo run in the top of the seventh and went on to whip the Dental Society, 1-0, in Colt League action Friday night.

The Lawyers, moving into first place in the league, tallied one late run when catcher Roy Scott drew a walk to open the inning, stole the next two bases, and romped home when a balk was charged against pitcher Don Welch of the Dental Society.

Welch, a southpaw, and Ron Burns of the Bar Association engaged in a sizzling pitcher's duel and the balk proved a costly maneuver.

Welch scattered four hits in going the route, and struck out six and walked a pair. Burns, showing great control, fanned eight and walked nobody.

Phil Stewart, shortstop for the winners, banged a double for the game's only extra-base hit.

The Dental Society dropped into a two-way tie for second place.

Beatty Claims 8:29.8 World 2-Mile Record

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Explosive little Jim Beatty claimed a world record of 8:29.8 for two miles Saturday, the first by an American at this distance since 1936.

The 5-foot-6, 126-pound Beatty uncorked the run in the Southern Pacific AAU Track and Field Championships at Occidental College's Patterson Field Friday night. He races for the Los Angeles Track Club.

He bettered the recognized record of 8:32 flat made by Australia's Albert Thomas in Dublin, Ireland, Aug. 7, 1958.

Murray Halberg of Australia was credited with 8:30 flat in a race in Finland in 1961 but it was never recognized.

The 27 - year - old native New Yorker, adopted son of Charlotte, N.C., and now living here, disclosed he took dead aim at the record.

"I wouldn't have started it if I didn't think I had a chance for a record," Beatty said.

It was the dark-haired, personable Beatty's first run since March 31 in the Santa Barbara Easter Relays when he clicked off 4:02.6 in the anchor lap of a medley relay. He has been sidelined with three separate leg injuries.

The last time an American's name graced the record book was that of Don Lash of Indiana, who was credited with being the first American to break nine minutes in the 2-mile grind.

En route to the 2 - mile mark Beatty broke the American record of 8:40.8 set by Halberg at Palo Alto Jan. 7, 1961, and the American citizen's mark of 8:42.5 held by Dyrol Burleson of Oregon.

New Jersey Fight Winds Up With Fans In Battle Royal

TOTOWA, N.J. (AP) — "Holy cow," said promoter Lou Durva today, "there I was in the ring and everyone is swinging at everyone else.

"It's a real donnybrook. Me, I'm in there as a peacemaker. Then they start swinging at me. So I get out in a hurry. I don't want to ge killed."

That's how the Don McAteer-Tom McNeeley heavyweight bout wound up here Friday night — with at least 20 fans in the ring, all swinging for all they were worth.

The cops arrived on the scene and escorted McNeeley, McAteer and referee Paul Cavalier out. Cavalier had just awarded the bout to McAteer after disqualifying McNeeley for low blows.

But it's doubtful if anyone heard him. The 2,000-off spectators in Gladiators arena were in an uproar. Some had climbed in the ring even before he announced his decision at 2:40 of the sixth of the scheduled 10.

Cavalier, senior referee in New Jersey, warned both McNeeley, who lost to Floyd Patterson for the world heavyweight title last December, and McAteer for low blows and butting. Then in the fifth, he stepped between them again and warned both.

Just as the fifth ended, a group of fans at ringside started throwing punches at each other.

In the sixth, McNeeley — who hasn't won a fight since the Patterson bout—had McAteer on the ropes. He fired four low blows and that was enough for Cavalier.

2 Young Drivers Get Suspensions

LISBON — Two youths lost their driving permits at hearings in Juvenile Court this week, two were fined and another forfeited bond.

The license of Lynn Harry Carver, 16, of North Benton was suspended for 60 days for reckless operation and Marvin C. Joy, 17, of Salem R. D. 3 surrendered his license for driving an unsafe vehicle. His will not be returned until he takes care of the emergency brake and smooth tires on his car.

Donald J. Kendrick, 16, of Salem was fined $15 for failing to stop within the assured clear distance and Ralph H. Temple 17, of 133 E. High St., Lisbon, $15 for driving without a license.

Randy Neale Lunch, 16, of Davistown, Pa., forfeited $20 for passing at an intersection. All were cited by the State Highway Patrol.

Passenger Injured In One-Car Mishap

A Beaver Falls passenger in a car driven by a Freedom motorist is in "fair" condition today at City Hospital after going through the windshield in an accident early today on Route 30 near Hookstown.

Henry M. Capson, 43, received severe facial lacerations and suffered profuse bleeding, according to the hospital report. He was admitted at 4:55 a. m.

John Brown, the driver, was reported not hurt. A tire apparently blew out, causing the car to hit guardrails and throwing Capson through the windshield.

Claims Of Jobless Show Increase Of 3

Claims for unemployment compensation benefits showed a net increase of three for the week ending today, Harry L. Dinsmore, manager of the Ohio State Employment Service, reported today.

Claims processed this week totaled 550 against 547 handled last week, he said.

The claims included 77 new and 462 continuing under the regular program, and 11 continuing claims under the federal extension act which expires the end of this month.

Wright Faces Another Moyer In Garden Bout

NEW YORK (AP) — On the theory that Denny Moyer can beat his older brother, Phil, Detroit's Teddy Wright is the underdog in tonight's boxing match at Madison Square Garden.

Unclear?

Well, Wright beat Phil Moyer, May 26 on an unanimous decision. Phil, 23, was subbing for 22-year-old Denny who had an infected left ear. Now that Denny is well he is a 8-5 favorite to beat Wright. As no state permits brothers to fight brothers, the family decision would seem to go to Denny on cumulative scores.

2 Young Drivers Get Suspensions

LISBON — Two youths lost their driving permits at hearings in Juvenile Court this week, two were fined and another forfeited bond.

The license of Lynn Harry Carver, 16, of North Benton was suspended for 60 days for reckless operation and Marvin C. Joy, 17, of Salem R. D. 3 surrendered his license for driving an unsafe vehicle. His will not be returned until he takes care of the emergency brake and smooth tires on his car.

Donald J. Kendrick, 16, of Salem was fined $15 for failing to stop within the assured clear distance and Ralph H. Temple 17, of 133 E. High St., Lisbon, $15 for driving without a license.

Randy Neale Lunch, 16, of Davistown, Pa., forfeited $20 for passing at an intersection. All were cited by the State Highway Patrol.

Passenger Injured In One-Car Mishap

A Beaver Falls passenger in a car driven by a Freedom motorist is in "fair" condition today at City Hospital after going through the windshield in an accident early today on Route 30 near Hookstown.

Henry M. Capson, 43, received severe facial lacerations and suffered profuse bleeding, according to the hospital report. He was admitted at 4:55 a. m.

John Brown, the driver, was reported not hurt. A tire apparently blew out, causing the car to hit guardrails and throwing Capson through the windshield.

Claims Of Jobless Show Increase Of 3

Claims for unemployment compensation benefits showed a net increase of three for the week ending today, Harry L. Dinsmore, manager of the Ohio State Employment Service, reported today.

Claims processed this week totaled 550 against 547 handled last week, he said.

The claims included 77 new and 462 continuing under the regular program, and 11 continuing claims under the federal extension act which expires the end of this month.

Wright Faces Another Moyer In Garden Bout

NEW YORK (AP) — On the theory that Denny Moyer can beat his older brother, Phil, Detroit's Teddy Wright is the underdog in tonight's boxing match at Madison Square Garden.

Unclear?

Well, Wright beat Phil Moyer, May 26 on an unanimous decision. Phil, 23, was subbing for 22-year-old Denny who had an infected left ear. Now that Denny is well he is a 8-5 favorite to beat Wright. As no state permits brothers to fight brothers, the family decision would seem to go to Denny on cumulative scores.

"My boss would rather baby sit for us than train a new secretary."

How Can I?

By ANNE ASHLEY

Q. Is there any way I can restore color to faded cretonne curtains?

A. First launder the curtains and iron them. Then, while still hot from the iron, take some crayons and go over the design, then put some plain paper over your art work, and press with a hot iron. Your curtains should then look much brighter and more colorful.

Q. How can I mix starch for use on dark materials?

A. Mix the starch with cold tea. A substitute for starch to be used on black or dark blue materials is to dissolve one teaspoon of gelatine in a quart of water.

Q. How can I cope with the faded, gray look some of my furniture has taken on?

A. Wring a soft wet cloth nearly dry, then dip it sparingly into green soap (obtainable at your drugstore). Rub this on a small area at a time, wipe off with another clean, damp cloth, then polish dry. Test the effect of this treatment first on a hidden place on the furniure.

Q. How can I make an emergency ice-pack for a small bruised or inflamed area where a regular ice bag would be too bulky?

A. Just slip an ice cube into a plastic bowl cover, twist the top, and secure it with a rubber band. This is especially helpful in treating the many small bumps and bruises children manage to collect.

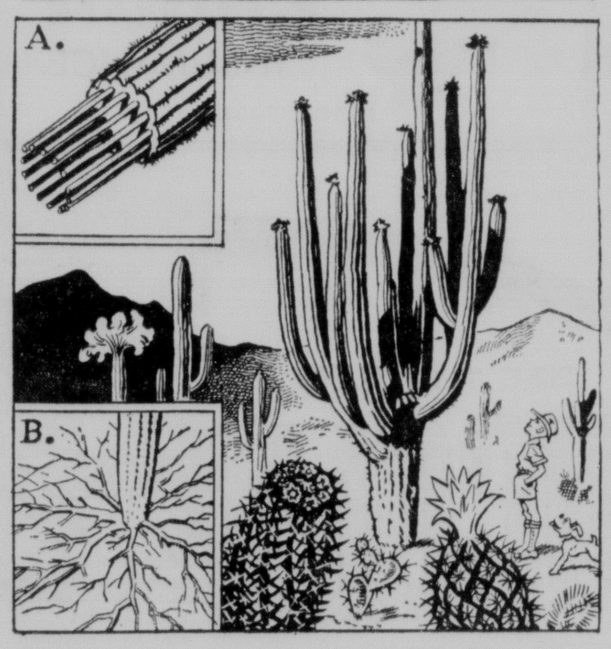
Q. What can I do about some delicate fabrics that don't take too well to ordinary starching?

A. In this case, dissolve some granulated sugar in water, and use this instead of the usual starch.

Q. What can I do if my sewing machine needle seems to be catching on some of the fine fabrics I run through it?

A. Try running your needle through some steel wool a few times. Get the point?

Junior Editors Quiz on PLANTS



QUESTION: How do cactus plants survive in the desert?

ANSWER: By using some of the most ingenious and wonderful of nature's mechanisms. The desert is a place where ordinary plants would die quickly from lack of water. Our illustration shows how the giant cacus called the saguaro meets this problem. Compare it with the boy on the right and you'll realize how big it is. Sketch B shows how the ground around a saguero would look if you removed the top layer of sand. A network of interlaced roots fans out in a large circle. When the rare rains fall, this network of roots soaks up every available drop of moisture. This water is lifted up and stored in the stems, which then become heavy and bloated. Why don't the stems sag with the weight? Sketch A shows a stem cut across revealing the ingenius system of woody rods which act as reinforcement. A cactus protects its precious supply of water with a thick skin and especially by a covering of prickly thorns which keeps animals and people, too, unless armed with long knives) at a safe distance.

FOR YOU TO DO: Did you know that some form of cactus grows wild in nearly all states? Grow some in your garden or in pots so that you can study their unusual habits.

'Chain Crash' Drivers Cited

Two drivers were cited after a three-way "chain reaction" crash Friday afternoon at 3:15 on Pennsylvania Ave. near Minnesota Ave., police reported.

The mishap damaged halted autos driven by Donald H. Gates Jr., 39, of 1009 Commerce St., Wellsville, and Miss Jean Salsberry, 16, of 753 Valley Ave. and a 1960 sedan operated by Claude Brooks, 65, of 1736 Globe St., officers said.

Gates told police he was halted in a westbound line of traffic and Miss Salsberry stopped behind him. Then the girl's car was hit from the rear by the Brooks auto and driven forward into the Gates car, police said.

Brooks, cited on a charge of failure to halt in the assured clear distance, is due for a Municipal Court hearing Monday morning. Miss Salsberry was cited into Juvenile Court as a traffic offender on a charge of operating an auto without a driver's license.

Patrolman Charles A. Winters investigated. There was damage to the rear bumper and tail light of the Gates car, the front of the Brooks car and the rear of the Salsberry car, police said.

Meanwhile, another motorist was charged with leaving the scene of an accident following a hit-skip crash Thursday night at 9:40 on Harvey Ave. near Myrtle St.

'Chain Crash' Drivers Cited

Two drivers were cited after a three-way "chain reaction" crash Friday afternoon at 3:15 on Pennsylvania Ave. near Minnesota Ave., police reported.

The mishap damaged halted autos driven by Donald H. Gates Jr., 39, of 1009 Commerce St., Wellsville, and Miss Jean Salsberry, 16, of 753 Valley Ave. and a 1960 sedan operated by Claude Brooks, 65, of 1736 Globe St., officers said.

Gates told police he was halted in a westbound line of traffic and Miss Salsberry stopped behind him. Then the girl's car was hit from the rear by the Brooks auto and driven forward into the Gates car, police said.

Brooks, cited on a charge of failure to halt in the assured clear distance, is due for a Municipal Court hearing Monday morning. Miss Salsberry was cited into Juvenile Court as a traffic offender on a charge of operating an auto without a driver's license.

Patrolman Charles A. Winters investigated. There was damage to the rear bumper and tail light of the Gates car, the front of the Brooks car and the rear of the Salsberry car, police said.

Meanwhile, another motorist was charged with leaving the scene of an accident following a hit-skip crash Thursday night at 9:40 on Harvey Ave. near Myrtle St.

The defendant is Max E. Linville, 1821 Michigan Ave., charged with failure to stop after his 1955 sedan hit a parked 1960 sedan owned by Marion Sias of Maple Dr., Calcutta. Linville posted a $107.50 bond for a hearing Monday morning.

He said the left front fender of his auto was damaged by an auto that made a wide turn in the driveway of a service station. Swinging onto the street again, the offending auto hit the Sias car, then continued west on Harvey Ave., he said. Police said the right side of Linville's car was scraped.

Let's Deglamorize Our Youngsters!

It's time to take a hard look at children's fashion shows, sophisticated parties, and athletic spectacles so much in vogue today

By THEODORE IRWIN

IN LOS ANGELES not long ago, 200 girls, some as young as 12, competed in a Brigitte Bardot resemblance contest. Wearing towels, bikinis, and the proper pout, they did their best to emulate the celebrated French "sex kitten."

Harmless fun? Not when viewed with the spate of other glossy, glamorous activities boys and girls are participating in—often with the blessings of their parents.

One of the gaudy, prematurely sophisticated roles that young girls play these days is modeling in small-fry fashion shows, where mothers dress them in scaled-down versions of strapless evening gowns and high heels. Pre-teen beauty contests, in a carnival atmosphere, also are staged, often sponsored by service organizations and even mothers' clubs.

Particularly in suburbs, social dancing is increasingly being pressed upon children as early as the fifth grade. Pint-sized children compete to be the best dressed. "Pairing off" is apt to be encouraged, and the tendency is for boy-girl parties to start at around the age of 11. Dating begins early. According to a survey by Dr. Winston Ehrmann of the University of Florida, one in four girls dates regularly before she reaches 13.

Junior-grade mixed parties, sponsored by parents in this affluent era, may include hired entertainment. For the "younger" element, a magician or games leader may star at a catered birthday party. In St. Louis, an eighth-grade graduation party was held in the city's best night club—and one high-school Valentine's Day dance cost each boy a minimum of $30.

Athletics, too, are being glamorized. Small boys are being handed flashy uniforms, unnecessary warm-up jackets, and sweat pants. Baseball diamonds are laid out like replicas of big-league ball parks, sometimes with grandstands, dugouts, scoreboard, even a built-in public address system for elaborate pregame ceremonies.

"The basic idea of athletics is being lost in the trimmings and gadgetry," says Joseph E. Curtis, recreation commissioner of White Plains, N. Y. "It's not baseball itself that seems to count, it's showmanship and glamour. A kid is involved with so many distractions that he plays for the accouterments as much as for the game. All this distorts his sense of values."

SOME OF THE glamorizing can be downright dangerous. Consider the "go-cart" craze.

One afternoon in Spartansburg, N. C., a 12-year-old boy driving a motorized "go-cart" on a drag strip suddenly lost control. He smashed into a group of spectators, injuring 16 and sending four to a hospital. This was not an isolated incident. A survey of 1,500 cities reveals that at least 33 deaths and 193 serious injuries have been caused by these "toy" cars. Yet more than a quarter-million go-carts are now being driven around, each at a cost of several hundred dollars to pampering parents.

Educators and social scientists observing various aspects of the glamorizing phenomenon maintain that in many cases the children are pawns for their parents' frustrated ambitions. These parents are overanxious for their offspring to be "popular."

But American youngsters really don't want the razzle-dazzle, says Joseph Prendergast, executive director of the National Recreation Association. He cites this example:

"A recreation department in Oklahoma offered a stargazers' program to youngsters who were willing to lug bedrolls to chilly hillsides, keep careful records of the constellations they saw, and construct their own scale models of the solar system. Perhaps a dozen takers were expected. More than 100 responded. The only razzle-dazzle in the program came when nature let go with a shooting star."

Instead of high-powered go-carts, fashion shows, sophisticated parties, and athletic spectacles, the consensus of thoughtful recreation directors is that our children would be much better off with some old-fashioned diversions.

"KEEP THEM simple and honest," Curtis suggests. He strongly advocates bicycling, for instance, and would like to see a network of community bike paths. From the third grade on, youngsters can go in for roller skating, ice skating, swimming, and basketball, he says. Softball can start in the fifth grade. Beginning in kindergarten, gymnastics can be enjoyed if mixed with games and stunts (these can be performed in your home playroom, too, with a layer of blankets or a mat). Touch football develops such skills as kicking, feinting, passing, and playmaking. Family recreation could include hiking, camping, and picnics.

In Curtis' view, we should also go back to folk dancing, musical games, and homespun fun. The finest home recreation device ever invented, he believes, is the living-room piano.

Heads of youth organizations point out that children do like vigorous sports and real hikes. It's usually a timid adult who is reluctant to let a child sleep on the ground or who fears he'll be hurt if he plays a "rough" game. Our children should be encouraged to participate rather than grow up to be victims of what President Kennedy has called "spectatoritis."

"Let's stop making jaded adults of youngsters bursting with energy," says recreation expert Prendergast. "It's fun to be active and fit. Let's give fitness and fun—without gaudy frills—back to our children."

How She Grew

derstanding that influenced everything Jack said and did. And then I fell in love with his Irish humor—and with him. All this took slightly less than one week!"

The first stop for the "Oklahoma!" tour was Paris, the city of lovers. Jack gave Shirley a gold miniature of the Eiffel Tower to wear on her charm bracelet. He took her to the famous Lido night club, and they danced until closing time. Instead of taking a taxi, they walked silently to their hotel, holding hands.

As the tour came to an end in Rome, Shirley and Jack tried to wipe the stardust from their eyes and take a dispassionate look at their relationship. They decided they would part for a while when they returned home to see whether separation would diminish their affection.

BACK IN THE United States, Jack went to Bucks County, Pa., to fill an engagement, and Shirley to Hollywood to film "Carousel." For three months, they were separated. But it was not the "you go your way, I'll go mine" sort of thing they had planned. Each day, they talked by phone. And when Shirley was in Maine for "Carousel" location shots, Jack ignored the agreement they had made and dashed up to Boothbay Harbor for a visit. They were married the following year.

Shaun was born in 1958. Shirley spells his name phonetically despite Jack's protest that it should be spelled Sean, the traditional Irish way. But, with indulgent amusement, he accepts Shirley's protest that "everyone would call him Seen."

"Jack hoped our second child, Patrick, would be a girl," Shirley said. "As it now stands, we really have three sons. David, Jack's 12-year-old son by a previous marriage, spends much of the time with us."

She reached into her bag and took out two pictures, one of David and one of Shaun—both wearing their father's three-cornered smile. "I just happen to have them with me . . ."

SHIRLEY'S RECENT visit to New York was in connection with her new movie, "The Music Man." In it, she plays the part of Marian, a spinster librarian who comes alive when she falls in love with a fascinating scamp. At first, Shirley wasn't sure she wanted the part.

"I thought it might return me to the sweet-young-thing category," Shirley said. "But reading the script changed my mind. It is the story of a small-town girl who discovers there can be—and indeed should be—more to life than a tight, prim hairdo, businesslike spectacles, and disdain for any man who hasn't read the books she has read. I began to plan how I would show the gradual change when Marian falls head-over-heels in love and forgets to be a librarian and becomes a loving woman. I feel that the part is every bit as dramatic as that of the shady lady in 'Elmer Gantry' that won me an Academy Award last year.

"I don't think I would have brought the same understanding to either of these parts, though, if I had not been married and secure as a wife and mother. When I met Jack, I was very naïve. As a man of the world, he led me gently.

"I don't know how I would have grown and matured without him."

By ADELE WHITELY FLETCHER

WHAT CAN A MAN mean to a woman? Everything! says Shirley Jones.

The prim little rosebud of "Oklahoma!" has blossomed into the vibrantly alive woman of "Elmer Gantry" and "The Music Man"—and she credits the transformation to the maturing influence of Jack Cassidy, her husband and the father of her two sons, Shaun, four, and Patrick, six months.

"Before I fell in love with Jack, I was a very different person," Shirley told me recently. "It was as if I held my nature in abeyance until I met the man I loved, then chose which of my dormant qualities would best fit our life together."

Shirley still has the same clear eyes, smooth, fresh skin, and gentle mouth that caught the attention of theatrical agents when she was on vacation in New York in 1953. But now Shirley's eyes meet you directly, her skin has a warmer glow, and her mouth is more expressive. She is quick to agree or disagree, always with confidence and with articulate reasons.

As I talked to her, the sun slanted through the window of her New York hotel suite, turning her hair into a golden mist and accenting the lovely upward tilt of her eyes and mouth. I noticed that every time the press agent who had arranged the interview passed through the room he turned for a second look at her.

Shirley was born with her beauty. Her ability as a singer and dancer has long been recognized. But critics felt that she "didn't quite come off" as a personality in her early movie roles in "Oklahoma!" and "Carousel." Somehow she seemed to lack fire and depth.

In 1955, soon after her first Hollywood fling, Shirley went on tour with the European road company of "Oklahoma!" Jack Cassidy—the man who was to change her life—was also in the troupe. He played Curly opposite her Laurie.

Oddly enough, the first time Shirley saw Jack she wasn't attracted to him. She was on her way backstage at the first New York rehearsal for the tour when another girl in the cast grabbed her arm and whispered: "Look! That must be Jack Cassidy! Isn't he good-looking?"

"Yes, he is," Shirley agreed with little enthusiasm. The demure young lady, not long out of Smithton, Pa., did not trust handsome men.

A few minutes later, Jack spotted Shirley and greeted her by saying: "Hello! I know you; you're Shirley Jones. My name's Jack Cassidy. It's a pleasure to be working with you."

Shirley was momentarily taken aback; then she broke into a smile. She couldn't help it. He seemed so genuinely pleasant.

When Shirley told me about the incident, a smile again flicked across her lips. And there was a loving warmth in her voice as she continued to reminisce:

"Right then and there, I began to reevaluate my theory about good-looking men. Soon I discovered the sensitive un-

When childhood constipation occurs

More mothers use Fletcher's Castoria than any other laxative

Because

Fletcher's Castoria gives the prompt, yet natural-like relief from temporary constipation that medical authorities agree is best for a child's young system. Its pure extract of Senna is considered one of nature's finest vegetable laxative products.

Fletcher's Castoria is gentle, the prime requisite for a child's laxative. It contains none of the harsh drugs so often found in adult laxatives, drugs that can upset your child's system.

Fletcher's Castoria is liquid, so exact dosage is sure: from drops to teaspoonfuls as needed. Very important, too, Castoria tastes good. So children take it willingly, even lick the spoon.

Fletcher's Castoria is the only nationally-recognized laxative made especially for children of all ages. So why take chances . . . the laxative that's "right" for you can well be "wrong" for your child. Get famous Fletcher's Castoria today.

WHAT CAN A MAN mean to a woman? Everything! says Shirley Jones.

The prim little rosebud of "Oklahoma!" has blossomed into the vibrantly alive woman of "Elmer Gantry" and "The Music Man"—and she credits the transformation to the maturing influence of Jack Cassidy, her husband and the father of her two sons, Shaun, four, and Patrick, six months.

Mr. Tourist out to roam
Wears clothes to knock your eye out.
Loud shorts he'd never don at home
Get their initial tryout,
And screaming sport shirts, hid away
Since they arrived as presents,
Are now exposed to light of day
And dazzled eyes of peasants.

Yet Mr. Tourist's clothes are mild
If one begins comparing
An outfit as completely wild
As that his wife is wearing.

GREATEST GATE CRASHER!

Marilyn Monroe, a jaunty taxi driver is doing just that

By STAN BERMAN
as told to Marya Saunders and Bob Gaines

THOUSANDS were cheering as astronaut John Glenn, the first American to orbit the earth, climbed onto the reception platform at New York's City Hall. I walked over and shook his hand. "How are you, Colonel?" I said. He smiled noncommittally.

I then shook hands with the others on the platform: Vice President Lyndon Johnson, Mayor Robert Wagner of New York, Mrs. Glenn and her children, and the six other astronauts who were taking part in the ticker-tape parade through Manhattan. They all smiled.

As we were being seated, I suddenly reached in front of Mayor Wagner and handed Colonel Glenn a small trophy. It was an imitation-gold statuette I'd bought the previous night in a novelty store. The inscription on the base read: "To Col. John Glenn, World's Greatest Astronaut, From Stan Berman, World's Greatest Gate Crasher."

What happened after that is incidental to the story. Mayor Wagner stared at me in shock and, the next thing I knew, three burly Secret Service men had yanked me off the platform. But I had accomplished what I had set out to do. Despite hundreds of police and Secret Service men, I'd slipped through the barricades and crashed the Glenn parade. Thousands gathered at City Hall and millions watching on tv had seen me there. I'd done the impossible.

Several weeks later I did the same thing at the Academy Awards presentation in the Santa Monica Civic Auditorium. Bob Hope, master of ceremonies at the event, has often joked about his long wait for an Oscar of his own. So when the awards were being handed out this year, I suddenly appeared on the stage and announced: "I'm here to present Bob Hope with his 1938 award." As the audience of movie stars gasped, I plunked a miniature Oscar on the podium and disappeared. Shelley Winters thought I was a winner as I came on stage—and almost gave me the Oscar for black-and-white photography.

Later in April I was back in New York for the televised presentation of the Tony Awards, the legitimate theater's equivalent of the Oscars. That time I got on stage twice and presented flowers to two award-winning actresses.

In the past 18 years, I've crashed more than 3,000 "uncrashable" parties. I've eaten more than 1,000 free meals, rubbed elbows with statesmen, queens, movie stars, socialites, famous athletes. I've been seen with every President since Herbert Hoover. Last year, during the Inaugural Ball, I sat in the Presidential box next to Joseph Kennedy, the President's father, and only a few seats away from President Kennedy and Jacqueline.

I crash everything—movie premières, political rallies, championship prize fights, diplomatic receptions, and weddings and funerals of the famous. I've dined and danced with such beauties as Rita Hayworth, Elizabeth Taylor, Marilyn Monroe, and Princess Grace of Monaco.

Some people deny that I crash all these events. But I make it a point of getting documented evidence whenever possible. After Lucille Ball's recent wedding to Gary Morton (which I crashed disguised as her bodyguard), Lucy swore I had not been there. She kept on swearing—until I produced pictures showing me helping her into her limousine at the church.

Some of my friends and relatives think I'm crazy to have spent 18 years crashing parties. My mother is afraid the FBI will get me eventually. "Why, Stanley?" she asks. "Why should a 36-year-old bachelor with a good job as a cab driver and a good home with his parents in Brooklyn want to be a gate crasher?"

I can only tell her it's exciting to prove to myself that a humble cabby can hobnob with the great. It's my hobby, just as some people collect stamps, and I know plenty who envy me.

It All Started with Roosevelt

Our country's Presidents and political leaders always have had a special fascination for me—probably because my career as a gate crasher started in 1944 when I went to a political rally in Brooklyn to get President Roosevelt's autograph. I managed to slip by the guards and get close enough to pass a note up to the President's box. I didn't get the autograph, but it was a thrill seeing him. I decided then I was going to be important and mix with the famous.

Since then, I've been a dedicated Presidential gate crasher. Once, I strolled into the White House grounds to meet President Truman, but the guards nabbed me before I got to him. I caught up with President Eisenhower several times on the golf course, and I've shaken hands with and waved campaign signs for every Presidential candidate since 1948. When Gen. Douglas MacArthur came back from Korea, I hitchhiked to the West Coast so I could be one of the first people to greet him. I dropped a note into his pocket. It read: "MacArthur for President."

But my biggest crash took place when Queen Elizabeth II visited this country in 1957. The Queen was the best-guarded person I've ever encountered. Because this represented a challenge, I decided I would try.

I slipped through a side exit of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York the evening an official banquet was being held there in the Queen's honor. Once inside, I worked my way down to the kitchen. There I picked up a tray, draped a napkin over my arm as if I were a waiter, and walked out into the crowded ballroom. A detective even held the door for me.

I marched up to the dais where the Queen was sitting with W. Averell Harriman, then governor of New York. I handed the Queen my autograph book and said, "Your Majesty, may I have your royal signature?"

She said, "Ugh"—her exact word—and gave the book to Governor Harriman. He said, "No," and gave the book back to me.

Scotland Yard Had a Waiter, Too

Not wishing to make a scene, I turned away. Another man dressed like a waiter came up behind me, pressed something in my back, and said, "Keep walking, chum. This is Scotland Yard."

I spent the rest of the evening in the 54th Street police station. The police grilled me for four hours. They wouldn't believe I was just a gate crasher and autograph collector. Finally, they took me to Bellevue Hospital. There, the examining psychiatrist talked to me a few minutes, then turned to the police and said, "Why do you waste my time? There's nothing wrong with being an autograph collector. I'm one myself."

Gate crashing is essentially hard work. I wear out three suits a year, and my pants are usually shiny from all the banquets I attend. Clothes are important, and I spend $20 a week for the best shoes, shirts, ties, stockings. When I go out to society parties, I act and dress the part.

I always keep a good dark suit and a shaving kit in the back of my cab when I'm cruising in case I bump into a good party. Since most of the hotels have at least one function a night, I'm never short of parties.

To be a successful gate crasher, you must throw out your chest and say, "I'm as good as anybody and I'm better than most." I carry all kinds of press cards to get me past ticket collectors and police barricades, but I rarely depend on them. My real tools are timing, cool nerves, and a faith in myself.

If anybody does stop me, I have dozens of alibis ready. I say I'm a reporter or a relative, a bodyguard, a caterer, a doctor, a fire inspector.

I have become so well known to guards and police that I sometimes use disguises. I have a kit containing a fake mustache, a goatee, a pipe, and pancake make-up to give me a darker complexion.

In the past year, an exciting thing has happened. People have begun welcoming me to par-

Arnold Palmer

"I was a guest of Mr. Waring's daughter," Winnie Palmer says, "and this was the first golf tournament I'd been to. Arnold asked to meet me, though, and I certainly have seen a lot of tournaments since then."

Within six months they were married, and Arnold made his big decision. "It wasn't as dramatic as people make it," Winnie says. "Arnold was confident he could be successful in golf."

PALMER RECALLS a difficult first year, though. "I won about $8,000 in 1955, about enough for cramped motel rooms and a trailer that broke down. It must have been a rough beginning for Winnie." But the next year Arnold's winnings rose to $20,000, and in 1957 to $31,000.

Winnie admits Arnold brings his work home with him: "You've got to remember, though, that golf is more than our business. For instance, all our friends are in golf, so when we sit around talking, it naturally comes up."

The Palmers and their two children, Peggy, 6, and Amy, 3, live in a ranch-style house overlooking the country club on which Arnold grew up. His parents live a few Palmer-length drives away, and the airport is down the road about a mile. There Arnold keeps his plane in which he commutes to tourneys.

All the Palmers try to get to the tournaments. After this year's Masters, some of them had trouble getting to Arnold through all his well-wishers. "Where are they?" he asked his agent. "Did they see me on that back nine?" (where his outstanding play clinched the three-way play-off).

He didn't sound much different from the kid of 20 years ago calling to family visitors, "Did you see me hit that one, did you?"

ties. At a reception I crashed the other night, the host came up and said, "You're Berman, the gate crasher, aren't you?" I was about to duck for the door, but he grabbed my arm. "No, I'd like you to stay. Come have a drink." During the same affair, I chatted with Mayor Wagner—we've been to so many functions together we're becoming good friends—and I danced with his wife Susan.

My plans for the future? Within the next year or so, I intend to go to Europe. Disguised as an American film distributor, I expect to meet Brigitte Bardot, Sophia Loren, and other foreign stars. Also, I'm going to see if I can't renew my acquaintance with Nikita Khrushchev. When he came here in 1959, I got close enough to tap him on the back.

Only one thing might change my plans. At a party recently, I struck up a conversation with a girl. She stared at me with a puzzled expression, then said, "I've seen your face somewhere."

Before I could answer, she stabbed her finger at me excitedly. "I know you. You're the gate crasher." Then she whipped out an autograph book and said, "May I have your autograph?"

That was the first time anybody ever asked me for my autograph. If this kind of thing continues, I may have to start giving parties of my own. And believe me, no one will crash them. I know all the tricks.

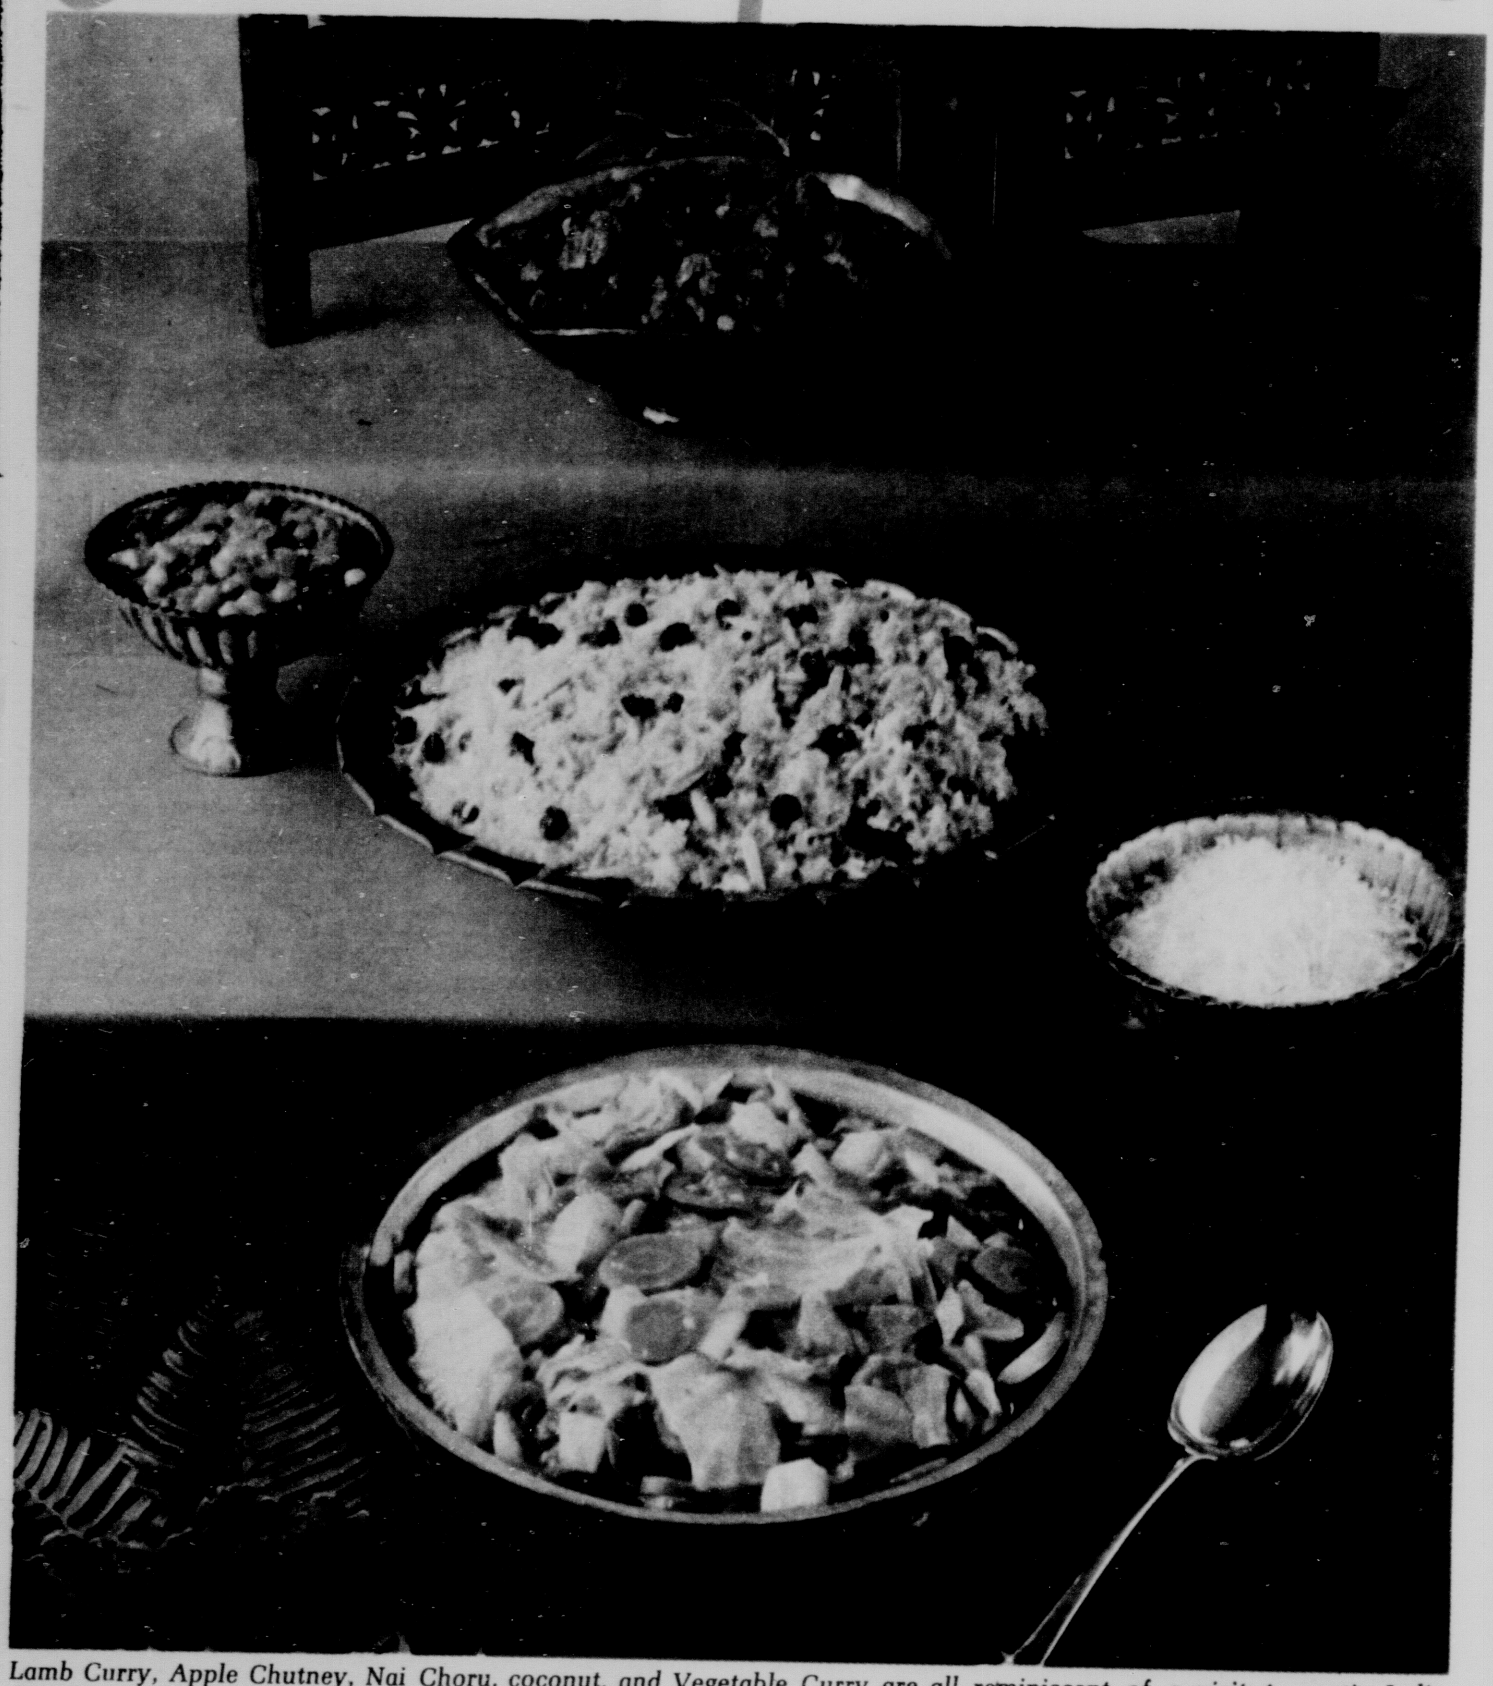
Port of Call-India



Lamb Curry, Apple Chutney, Nai Choru, coconut, and Vegetable Curry are all reminiscent of a visit to exotic India.

India—a far-off land that conjures up thoughts of curries and exotic foods with such unfamiliar names as Sambal, Payasam, Nai Choru, Chapatti. Curry dishes have endless variations—hot, bland, dry, liquid. They may be made with fish, meat, poultry, or vegetables for a one-dish meal or one of many served at a party.

A curry is generally accompanied by small side dishes which are designed to add variety in color, flavor, and texture. These may include chutney; grated coconut; roasted peanuts, cashew, or pistachio nuts; crisp crumbled bacon; Bombay duck (salt dried fish); chopped whites and sieved yolks of hard-cooked eggs; chopped onions, pickles, or tomatoes. The reference to an "8-boy" or "10-boy" curry goes back to a time when the rice and each curry accompaniment was carried to the table by an individual bearer. Here are recipes for curries, both meat and vegetable, with a choice of two chutneys, a typical rice dish, and the bread called Chapatti.

Lamb Curry

TO PREPARE: 25 MIN.
TO COOK: 1 HR.

- ¼ cup cooking oil
- 1 lb. boneless lamb shoulder, cut in 1-in. cubes
- ½ cup chopped onion
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 3 tablespoons packaged grated coconut
- 1 tablespoon curry powder
- ½ teaspoon Accent
- 1 chili pepper, finely chopped
- 2 cups beef broth

1. Heat 2 tablespoons of the cooking oil in a large, heavy skillet. Lightly coat lamb pieces with flour. Add meat to skillet and brown evenly over medium heat. Remove meat from skillet with a slotted spoon and set aside.

2. Add remaining oil, the onion, garlic, and coconut to skillet; cook until onion is soft, stirring occasionally.

3. Stir in curry powder, Accent, chili pepper, broth, and browned meat. Cover skillet, bring to boiling, and cook over low heat until meat is tender, about 1 hr., stirring occasionally.

4. Serve with saffron rice.

4 servings

Apple Chutney

TO PREPARE: 20 MIN.
TO COOK: 35-40 MIN.

- 4 cups coarsely chopped tart apples
- 1 medium-sized onion, chopped
- 1 green pepper, chopped
- 1 cup firmly packed brown sugar
- 1 cup dark corn sirup
- 1½ cups cider vinegar
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1 tablespoon mustard seed
- 1 tablespoon ground ginger
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- 1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
- 1 clove garlic
- 1 lb. seedless raisins

1. Combine all ingredients in a large saucepan. Bring mixture rapidly to boiling, stirring constantly. Simmer, uncovered, 35 to 40 min., stirring occasionally, until mixture thickens. Remove from heat and discard garlic.

2. If chutney is to be canned, pour immediately into six hot half-pint jars and seal according to manufacturer's directions. Process in boiling water bath.* Cool.

3. Serve as a meat or curry accompaniment.

Six ½-pt. jars chutney

* Put sealed jars on a rack in a large kettle. Cover jars with at least 1 in. of boiling water. Boil for 5 min.

Arnold Palmer's wife and chief rooter, Winnie, watched him take 1962 Masters three-way play-off (right) against Gary Player and Dow Finsterwald.

Arnold Palmer—The Winningest Man in Golf

He's on his way to a childhood dream, a golfing grand slam, and if he succeeds, his dad, mom, and wife should take bows By JACK RYAN

THE MOTHER of the winningest man in golf looks back and remembers him as a "determined boy, even at 9 or 10."

"Some of the local women would get up a foursome," she says. "I'd tell Arnie, 'Now stay home and help your sister.' But by the time we'd get to the back nine, one of the girls would tell me, 'Arnie's following us—and carrying his clubs.' So what could we do? We'd let him play."

His father, a former laborer at the Latrobe (Pa.) Country Club who worked his way up to club pro, has similar memories. "The members didn't want a pesty kid playing their course—especially when he played it better. I'd tell him, 'Only play on Mondays when the course is closed.' But any day I could expect a member to come up and say, 'Deke, that boy of yours is out there practicing again.'"

The boy has grown to man, champion, husband, and father. But he hasn't changed much. "He'll come home between tournaments to rest," says his wife Winnie. "That means practicing shots during the day. At night, we'll sit around watching tv, but Arnie will jump up after a few minutes and practice 'phantom' putting in the living room."

The golfing boy grown to golf wizard is Arnold Palmer, of course, an affable crowd pleaser with the physique of a steel worker, which he nearly was, and the understanding family that every golfer dreams of.

At the halfway point in the current golf season, Palmer has won about $50,000 in tournament prizes; his yearly income from all sources is about $300,000; he has collected more than $325,000 on the links in his eight-year career; and he has won the 1962 Masters tourney (for the third time), the first link in his "dream of a lifetime."

This week Palmer goes after the second link, the United States Open at Oakmont, Pa. If he wins and then duplicates the feat in the British Open next month and the subsequent PGA tournament, he will have fulfilled his boyhood pledge—a golfing grand slam unequaled since the glorious days of all-time great Bobby Jones.

"The idea of a golfing grand slam is still very much in my mind," Palmer says. "I hardly remember when it wasn't." The words are immodest, but Palmer sounds more like a Sunday golfer who hopes to break 100.

What makes a golfing great? Palmer has his own ideas on technique (at $1,000 a demonstration). Other experts point to his V build, the chunky muscles that swell in his shoulders and taper to steel-like whips in his wrists.

"He always had big hands," his father, Milford (Deke) Palmer, says, "and I first taught him the Vardon overlapping grip. I told him to get a firm grip on the club, slow backswing, steady head, careful on overswing." Mr. Palmer was criticized for turning Arnie into a "sledge-hammer swinger." Today critics pay to watch his 270-yard drives.

Mr. Palmer also taught his son that before he could control his power, he must control himself. In a high-school tournament, Arnie flubbed a shot, tossed his club over a tree in anger. "Do that once more," his father said, "and you never golf again." Today Palmer is a writhing ham between shots but coldly automated in addressing a ball.

The elder Palmer moved his family to a tiny groundskeeper's cottage in Latrobe after the Pittsburgh steel mills closed during the Depression. There wasn't much extra money for entertainment, so everyone turned to golf.

BY THE TIME he was six, Arnie occupied a permanent perch on a nearby fence and would greet visitors with, "Wanta see me hit the ball into the hole?"

"He always loved a gallery," Mrs. Palmer says about the gallery's favorite player. "People watching him golf never made him nervous. He enjoyed them being there. After every good shot, he'd turn to our visitors and say, 'Did you see that one, did you?'"

One day a friend gave Arnie a book about Bobby Jones, and he couldn't stop reading it. That's where the idea of the grand slam came to him.

A golfing career needs financial backing in its early stages, however, and although Arnold became a high-school star he appeared destined for work in the nearby mills. But an unexpected golf scholarship to Wake Forest University led, in turn, to an amateur apprenticeship.

After service in the Coast Guard, Palmer became something of a golfing bum, drifting indecisively from business to golf. In 1954, he was entered in the Fred Waring Tournament at Shawnee-on-the-Delaware when a freckled-faced, pert-nosed girl in the gallery caught his eye.

At night, we'll sit around watching tv, but Arnie will jump up after a few minutes and practice 'phantom' putting in the living room."

The golfing boy grown to golf wizard is Arnold Palmer, of course, an affable crowd pleaser with the physique of a steel worker, which he nearly was, and the understanding family that every golfer dreams of.

At the halfway point in the current golf season, Palmer has won about $50,000 in tournament prizes; his yearly income from all sources is about $300,000; he has collected more than $325,000 on the links in his eight-year career; and he has won the 1962 Masters tourney (for the third time), the first link in his "dream of a lifetime."

This week Palmer goes after the second link, the United States Open at Oakmont, Pa. If he wins and then duplicates the feat in the British Open next month and the subsequent PGA tournament, he will have fulfilled his boyhood pledge—a golfing grand slam unequaled since the glorious days of all-time great Bobby Jones.

"The idea of a golfing grand slam is still very much in my mind," Palmer says. "I hardly remember when it wasn't." The words are immodest, but Palmer sounds more like a Sunday golfer who hopes to break 100.

What makes a golfing great? Palmer has his own ideas on technique (at $1,000 a demonstration). Other experts point to his V build, the chunky muscles that swell in his shoulders and taper to steel-like whips in his wrists.

"He always had big hands," his father, Milford (Deke) Palmer, says, "and I first taught him the Vardon overlapping grip. I told him to get a firm grip on the club, slow backswing, steady head, careful on overswing." Mr. Palmer was criticized for turning Arnie into a "sledge-hammer swinger." Today critics pay to watch his 270-yard drives.

Mr. Palmer also taught his son that before he could control his power, he must control himself. In a high-school tournament, Arnie flubbed a shot, tossed his club over a tree in anger. "Do that once more," his father said, "and you never golf again." Today Palmer is a writhing ham between shots but coldly automated in addressing a ball.

The elder Palmer moved his family to a tiny groundskeeper's cottage in Latrobe after the Pittsburgh steel mills closed during the Depression. There wasn't much extra money for entertainment, so everyone turned to golf.

BY THE TIME he was six, Arnie occupied a permanent perch on a nearby fence and would greet visitors with, "Wanta see me hit the ball into the hole?"

"He always loved a gallery," Mrs. Palmer says about the gallery's favorite player. "People watching him golf never made him nervous. He enjoyed them being there. After every good shot, he'd turn to our visitors and say, 'Did you see that one, did you?' "

One day a friend gave Arnie a book about Bobby Jones, and he couldn't stop reading it. That's where the idea of the grand slam came to him.

A golfing career needs financial backing in its early stages, however, and although Arnold became a high-school star he appeared destined for work in the nearby mills. But an unexpected golf scholarship to Wake Forest University led, in turn, to an amateur apprenticeship.

After service in the Coast Guard, Palmer became something of a golfing bum, drifting indecisively from business to golf. In 1954, he was entered in the Fred Waring Tournament at Shawnee-on-the-Delaware when a freckled-faced, pert-nosed girl in the gallery caught his eye.

Thimble Toss

By Regina Sauro

Two or more children can play this game. Ask Mother to let you use a thimble from her sewing basket. You will need small dried beans or dried peas—as long as the beans are small enough to fit into the thimble. Five beans for each player are needed.

One player holds the thimble on a table. The other player tosses his beans, one at a time, into the thimble. He must stand two feet away from it.

For every bean that goes into the thimble, the player gets 10 points. The first player to reach 100 is the winner.
